Says Hikes May Force Cutbacks

President Speaks On Steel Boosts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, acting after a wave of steel price boosts he did not challenge, has warned that such increases could force a cutback in government spending on projects such as the space program.

$5 Billion for NASA

The President coupled the signing Friday of a bill authorizing $5 billion for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration with this warning to business and union leaders:

"If particular segments of our economy continue to raise their prices and increase the cost of this and other programs, it will be necessary for the government to further reduce its expenditures, particularly in those areas where prices are rising in an inflationary way."

Although Johnson made no direct reference to this week's price increases in the steel industry, it was clear that his statement was prompted by that move and last week's rejection by the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists of an airlines contract calling for increases reported to be between 6 and 7 per cent. Acceptance of the contract would have ended the month-old walkout against five major airlines.

The White House has labeled the steel price hikes inflationary, but the industry called the $2 to $3 a ton boosts inconsequential and modest.

Depends on Cooperation

In his statement, Johnson said the maintenance of the space program depends on the cooperation of "major business leaders and union leaders."

"If we are to continue our space effort and continue to make the magnificent progress represented by our past achievements," the chief executive said, "we can do so only if business and labor leaders will make their contribution by responsible pricing and bargaining decisions."

Despite the President's strong words, the administration apparently does not intend any dramatic moves to counter the price hikes.

The boosts, initiated by Inland Steel Co. Tuesday, affect sheet and strip steel, which comprise about 30 per cent of the industry's output. Some estimate the industry boosts will increase the cost to the auto industry — main user of sheet and strip steel — by about $1.50 per car.

The new prices go into effect Wednesday.

U.S. Girls Move To 'Save Beatles'

London (AP) — Two American girls called on Britons today to support their "Save the Beatles campaign" in the United States.

Their appeal in an ad in the personal column of the Daily Telegraph, came as the "Ban the Beatles" campaign spread to Spain and South Africa and a new controversy stirred up in Britain.

The American girls are Susan Dobbs and Theresa Earles of Hopewell, Va. Their ad said they had founded the "Save the Beatles" campaign.

Again Faces Quiz by House Group on Halting Air Tieup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz appears before an unusual Saturday session of the House Commerce Committee to again face questioning about legislation aimed at halting the month-old airline strike.

The bill, passed by the Senate Thursday, would order striking mechanics back to work on five airlines for 30 days and provide machinery for the President to postpone any strike resumption for 150 more days.

Wirtz told the House Commerce Committee Friday there is little chance for meaningful negotiations between the airlines and the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists while Congress is considering action.

Despite the unusual Saturday session, the bill is not being given rush treatment. If the committee finishes taking testimony from Wirtz today, it will devote Monday to interrogating P.L. (Roy) Siemiller, union president. William J. Curtin, chairman of the five carriers' negotiating committee, is next on the committee list.

Wirtz told the committee Friday the strike, while generally inconvenient and seriously damaging to some individual businesses and areas, has had only minor impact on the economy as a whole, and none on national defense or health. He said it is up to Congress to decide whether, in such circumstances, it should intervene with strike-halting legislation.

Raises Strength to 290,000

Airlift Famed Unit To Key Battle Area

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A brigade of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division, which won fame in two world wars, landed in South Viet Nam today and was immediately airlifted to the central highlands, one of this country's major battle-grounds.

The arrival raised U.S. troop strength in Viet Nam to about 290,000 men and highlighted a day in which ground fighting dwindled to sporadic and light actions.

Set 25 Trucks Aflame

In the air, however, a U.S. spokesman said heavy strikes continued against North Viet Nam where Red gunners fired 15 Soviet-built surface-to-air missiles at raiding American warplanes Friday.

One of the most successful raids was a sweep at a 40-truck convoy heading south under cover of darkness. Strafing and bombing attacks set 25 of the trucks aflame in strikes Friday night and early today.

The military spokesman said the only fighting reported today was in the highlands west of Pleiku and about five miles from the Cambodian frontier — an area where some 10,000 U.S. soldiers are hunting the Viet Cong.

The light clash today came when a reconnaissance patrol of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, airmobile, Division hit what was apparently a covering force of North Vietnamese regulars.

Details of the action were scant, the spokesman said, but the U.S. forces were pressing on into the area.

Was First on German Soil

The 4th (Ivy) Division, based at Ft. Lewis, Wash., is commanded by Maj. Gen. A. S. Collins Jr. It is best known for its D-Day landing on Utah Beach in France in World War II. It also claims to be the first allied unit to reach German soil in that war. In World War I, it fought in the Meuse-Argonne campaign, among others.

The rest of the division is expected to arrive in South Viet Nam in the near future. U.S. officials have predicted that 350,000 to 400,000 troops will be here by the end of the year.

In the air war, giant B52s from Guam flew in this morning for a high-altitude saturation strike on a suspected Viet Cong jungle hideout in Quang Tin Province south of Da Nang.

Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots flew 105 missions over North Viet Nam today, plaster-

Pageantry Abounds for Rites Steeped in Various Traditions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Luci Johnson, the President's younger daughter, married Patrick J. Nugent today amid a blending of triumphal music and sentimental and religious traditions.

Months of Planning

The historic wedding, months in the planning, but taking a little more than an hour, has attracted nationwide attention. The wedding day dawned clear and bright, and the forecast was for mostly sunny weather and a high temperature in the lower 80s.

The combined efforts of the White House and the Roman Catholic Church provided prominence and pageantry for the ceremony.

It all came to a climax at high noon, after an hour-long carillon concert, as President Johnson escorted his vivacious 19-year-old daughter to the great marble altar in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception — the nation's largest Catholic church.

There, Luci exchanged gold rings and the ancient vows "to have and to hold... until death do us part" with tall, 23-year-old Nugent, whom her father calls a "little American."

Rivals European Cathedrals

The huge church — rivaling imposing cathedrals of Europe — filled with white flowers and greenery, provided a dramatic setting for the Nuptial Mass.

Seven hundred family friends — some of them high level officials — and relatives were invited to view the marriage. Luci is the eighth daughter of a President to marry while her father was in office.

A dramatic entrance was planned for the 26-member wedding party after a 20-minute drive in limousines from the White House to the curving driveway of the church.

The wedding party stepped out before a battery of television cameras to make a long climb up 37 steps to the high arched doorway of the church.

Sentimental Moments

Luci tried to keep her dramatic and elegant long white bridal gown a secret until the last moment.

Monumental Scene at Shrine

Luci Eighth to Wed While Father Serves

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under the Romanesque arches of a vast shrine, a full-throated choir fell silent today, an age-old question was put by a priest, and the words "I do" came from the lips of Luci Baines Johnson and Patrick John Nugent.

Thus the daughter of the 36th President became the bride of a college boy reared in a modest, orange bungalow in Waukegan, Ill.

700 Attend Ceremony

She was the latest in a roster of eight girls married while their fathers served as chief executive of the nation.

The scene could best be described as monumental. The National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, world's seventh largest church, gleamed with light filtered through many-colored panes and falling on great mosaics.

Cascades of greenery and white roses marked the pews for the select congregation of 700, composed of friends great and humble of the principals.

The three clergymen of the concelebrated Mass, the new-lywed and indeed the tall President himself seemed tiny com-

Three Are Killed In Greene Mishap, 2 Others Injured

Three persons were killed at 3:15 a. m. today as the result of a rear-end two-car collision which occurred on Route 23A in Tannersville, Greene County.

Brooklyn Victims

Leeds state police identified two of the victims as Bruce Perks, 23, and his wife, Ann, 21, of 275 Dahill Road, Brooklyn. The name of the third victim was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

According to troopers both vehicles were traveling west on the highway when Perks reportedly pulled out to pass a car driven by Walter Legg, 21, of Haines Falls, and the vehicles collided. The Perks car was split

Put Accent On Fun for Aug. 17-18

A vast array of new features, all with a touch of the old, will abound at the Ulster County Fair this year. The promotion committee of the fair, which will hold forth for a two-day stint, Aug. 17 and 18, at Forsyth Park, is working round the clock to come up with unique ideas aimed at reviving all the old-fashioned atmosphere of a turn-of-the-century event.

Long Missing Here

If this year's fairgoers will not be arriving in horse-drawn buggies, they will, nevertheless, be fed to as much of a return to the past as is possible. The accent this year will be on fun for both adults and children and the flavor of midways of old will be captured in attractions long missing here.

Among events and features already planned to bring back the gaiety of the original country fair are a toy sailboat race for youngsters in the wading pool at the park, and a Wednesday night square dance to the rhythmic beat of a live band.

Open To Suggestions

All area residents who might have ideas to contribute which would help to revive a truly old-fashioned fair are urged to phone their suggestions to the chairman of the promotion committee, Lorraine Lilja, of Glenford.

Debris Is Scattered Over Acre

Tragedy Is Second For Family of 9

LIVINGSTON, N.Y. (AP) — Three children were killed and four others of the family injured, including the parents, when an explosion demolished their home Friday night, a day after they moved to this residential community south of Hudson.

The dead tentatively were identified as Fayne, 4, Kiki, 8, and Jimmie Sinclair, 7.

Girl 11, Seniors

Their parents, Albert Sinclair, 37, and Aurora, 36, were taken to Columbia Memorial Hospital in Hudson, along with Bertram, 9, and Marguerite, 11.

Mrs. Sinclair, a native of Mexico, was the only one able to talk with authorities. Marguerite was listed in serious condition, while the others were reported satisfactory.

Two other Sinclair children, Albert, Jr., 19, and Candy, 16, were not at home when the unexplained explosion racked the quiet neighborhood and scattered debris over an acre.

Albert was visiting with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Sinclair of Scarsdale, while Candy was reported attending a private girls' school in Mexico.

Cause Not Determined

The cause of the explosion was not known immediately. Some fire officials theorized, however, that it could have been caused by a gas-tank that supplied cooking fuel.

Two propane tanks on the outside of the house still were intact, firemen reported.

More than 300 volunteers responded to the call that went out shortly after 10 p.m.

Ironically, a house occupied by the Sinclair family was destroyed in the Alaskan earthquake in March 1964. At that time, Sinclair was employed as an instructor at a military dependents' school at Stewart Bay.

No one was injured, but Candy, who was 14 then, rescued her younger brothers and sisters.

The Sinclairs moved into their

Dutchess Records 29th Road Death

A 45-year-old highway worker was killed and another was critically injured at 12:30 p. m. Friday, when they were knocked down and run over by a dump truck at a construction site on the Taconic State Parkway south of the Clinton Corners gas station.

James Pires, 45, of 28 Spruce Street, New Rochelle, was Dutchess County's 29th highway fatality of 1966.

State Trooper Ronald McPhail of the Rhinebeck-Hyde Park detail said the truck was operated by William Gersh, 31, of 22 Grand Street, Highland.

Critically injured was Frank Colella, 45, of Castle Heights Avenue, New York City. He was rushed to St. Francis Hospital, Poughkeepsie, suffering fractured ribs and internal injuries.

According to an investigation by BCI Investigator Joseph Coligan and Trooper Robert Donahue, Gersh was backing a dump truck unaware the two workers were behind the vehicle. The tailgate hit Pires and Colella and

King Felled by Rock; 'Never Saw Such Hate'

CHICAGO (AP) — Racial violence wracked a tidy all-white neighborhood Friday for the second time this week and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who was felled by a rock, said the eruption was fostered by the worst hate he has ever seen.

King promised the marchers would return to the area. More than 6,000 frenzied white residents of the Southwest Side Chicago Lawn neighborhood rioted during and after a march by 800 civil rights demonstrators.

The civil rights group is demanding open housing. The Chicago Lawn residents say they had built up the neighborhood and that Negroes would degrade it.

A 19-year-old white youth was wounded in the shoulder by a knife thrown towards King during the march. The youth was released after hospital treatment. Police arrested 39 white persons, including 3 women. Hospital said 28 persons were brought in with injuries.

"It hurts, but it's not an injury," King shouted above the cursing, screaming, jeering mob in Marquette Park after he fell to one knee when a rock hit his head.

"I have to do this — to expose myself — to bring this hate into the open," King shouted to newsmen. "I have never seen such hate — not in Mississippi or Alabama — as I see here in Chicago."

King, chairman of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, got to his feet, ripped off his tie and began forming the demonstrators into a line for the march.

Bare Whitman's Fears And Violent Impulses

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "I am prepared to die. After my death I wish an autopsy on me to be performed to see if there's any mental disorders."

Charles J. Whitman thus informed the world — in notes left near the murdered bodies of his wife and mother — that he did not expect to survive the Monday violence he inflicted on the University of Texas campus.

The Associated Press learned exclusively Friday the precise wording of major portions of the notes.

The source, an official who requested anonymity, declined to divulge large portions of the two notes which he said included "statements about Whitman's father."

In a two-page note left in his Austin apartment, near the nude body of his pretty blonde wife, Whitman wrote of his impulses and pain and compulsions that mystified him.

"I don't quite understand what is compelling me to type this note," he began.

"I've been to a psychiatrist. I've been having fears and violent impulses. I've had some tremendous headaches in the past."

"I am prepared to die. After my death, I wish an autopsy on me to be performed to see if there's any mental disorders."

There followed one of numerous statements about his father, the source said, and then Whitman told his plans for his wife. "I've decided to kill Kathy" — Kathleen Whitman, his wife — "tonight. I love her very much."

Whitman then again wrote of his father. "Then: 'I intend to kill my wife after I pick her up from

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODIE ISHMAEL

FAITH IN JAPAN—IV

Yoshihiko Ujino, a shoe repairman in Tokyo's working class district of Edogawa, expresses his Christian faith in his work and his poetry. Raised during the horrors and uncertainties of the war and post war period, Yoshihiko wrote poetry "to keep myself happy."

Students from a girl's school near his shop first read his poems when they went to have shoes repaired. They told parents and others his poems and his reputation as a poet grew. Today he not only continues to write, but is also Sensei (the teacher) to 135 would-be poets in modern Japan. His poetry magazine Kuno to Mugi (Clouds and Barley) publishes the poems of workmen, housewives and students who have found fulfillment through his teaching. A Sunday school teacher for many years, he injects his religion into many of his poems with simple beauty.

"All I want
Is a heart well-water clear with innocence,
Fit to make an honest poem.

All I want
Is courage to expose myself
Innocently, on happy and unhappy occasions
To my God.

All I want
Is a heart and will to believe Innocently."

Ex-Marine Runs TV-Radio Ministry From Own Stations

By HARRY NASH
PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — A former Marine, who shelved an Ivy League law degree to enter the ministry, hopes to expand a small television station into a million-dollar facility to spread the gospel.

"We hope to start work this fall on a full color television studio with video tape and a new radio-television center," says Pat Robertson. "The cost is estimated at more than a million dollars."

"Though 'our principal ministry right now is to the million or so people in Tidewater Virginia," Robertson envisions a religious network serving the eastern seaboard.

"I have a particular burden eventually to reach the heavily populated East Coast of the United States with the gospel of Christ. Key cities would include Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, which form with Norfolk what is called Megalopolis," he said.

Robertson, 36 and 6 feet 2, is a son of Sen. A. Willis Robertson of Virginia. He received a bachelor of arts degree at Washington and Lee University in 1959 and was mustered out of the Marines in 1952 after serving in Korea.

Three years later, Robertson was graduated from Yale Law School, tried big business briefly, then entered New York Theological Seminary. There he received a bachelor of sacred theology degree in 1959. He is an ordained Baptist minister.

"I asked the Lord what He wanted me to do next," Robertson recalls. "The answer came that fall."

He learned that a small television station in Portsmouth could be bought for $37,000. He loaded his wife and three children — he has four now — into the family car and drove to Portsmouth with $70 in his pocket.

"The first thing I did," he said, "was to have printed 10,000 cards asking people to pray. In January 1960, I formed the Christian Broadcasting Network, Inc., to operate the station. I opened a bank account with a deposit of $3, the first contribution received. It was from a young man in South Carolina."

Robertson, who likes to be called Pat — "hardly anyone knows my name is Marion G." — renamed the station WYAH-TV, taken from the Hebrew word Yahweh. He who causes (everything) to be.

"The first year was difficult, to say the least," Robertson recalls. "We did not solicit funds. We relied on prayer to sustain the station. There were no commercials."

"Nevertheless, our income has virtually doubled every year since 1961, when it was $7,000. I estimate the 1966 income will be approximately $200,000."

"We still have no commercials on the television station, but we do on our FM radio station, WKRL, which we put on the air in 1962 to augment the work of WYAH-TV."

The television and radio staffs now include 16 full-time and nine part-time employees. Robertson says operating costs run $12,000 to $15,000 per month.

The stations receive many telephone requests for spiritual counsel and prayers. Counsel is given immediately by telephone. Prayer requests are referred to Robertson for response on a television program.

The stations are operated on an interdenominational basis.

BISHOP J. D. BRIGHT

Bishop to Visit St. Mark's AME; Banquet Slated

Guest speaker at St. Mark's AME Church, 12 Foxhall Avenue, Sunday 4 p. m. will be Bishop John D. Bright Sr.

Bishop Bright is enroute to the World Methodist Council of Churches in Europe and will visit part of Asia while abroad.

His local visit marks the first time a bishop has visited this church in six decades. A banquet in his honor will be given by the church at the Governor Clinton Hotel 6:30 p. m. Sunday.

The Bishop, a native of Americus, Ga., has under his supervision 400 churches and 150 thousand parishioners.

Is Payne Graduate

He attended Wilberforce University and Payne Seminary in Wilberforce, Ohio, where he graduated in June, 1942. Bishop Bright received honorary degrees from Daniel Payne College, Birmingham, Ala.; Allen University, Columbia, S. C. and Wilberforce University.

He is a member of World Council of Churches, World Council of Methodism and the National Council of Churches. Fraternally he is associated with Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, NAACP, Masonic Lodge and Elks.

Elected in 1960

He was elected to the Bishopric May, 1960 at Los Angeles, Calif. His first assignment in this post was to Central Africa where he served for two and a half years prior to being called to a home assignment in Arkansas and Oklahoma.

In May, 1964 he was assigned to the First Episcopal District which comprises Bermuda, Delaware, Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and New England.

Many area dignitaries are expected to attend the service and festivities in his honor.

London Becomes Popular Stopover For U.S. Tourists

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON — (NEA)—No one is more amazed than the average Londoner that his city has ousted Paris and Rome as the favorite stopover of American tourists in Europe.

London, which Americans once thought of as Squaresville, is now very much with it, particularly as far as young Americans are concerned. They see it as the pacesetter for youthful fashions and pop music.

But the natives, who dream of holidays on sun-drenched beaches are astonished that foreigners even want to set foot in the British Isles, where summer is one long succession of cold, wet days.

Despite the climate and the sterling crisis, the foreign keep coming. This year 2,700,000 foreign visitors will have flocked to Britain, marking a 16 per cent increase on the number last year.

In fact, tourism is now Britain's biggest single dollar earner, ranking fourth among its export industries. If the present trend continues, four million visitors can be expected here in 1970 and one million of them will be Americans.

Americans come here not in search of sun or sand—they can get these on the Costa Brava in Spain. Nor do they want to inspect new housing projects, nuclear reactors or postwar shopping centers. "We have plenty of these at home," explains a matron from Dallas, whose spectacle frames are inset with real diamonds.

No, what the Americans are after is "quaintness," according to the British Travel Association. They are in search of Cornish fishing villages, ancient cathedrals, the ivy-covered towers of Oxford University, Highlanders' crofts, and—yes—the Beefeater guards in their scarlet tunics.

The average American spends $300 during his average 13-day stay in Britain. London heads his sightseeing itinerary, followed by Stratford-on-Avon (sometimes known as Bardville), Edinburgh, Windsor and Oxford, in that order.

This year many Americans are visiting Runnymede to see the memorial dedicated to the late President Kennedy. They are also calling at Blenheim Palace where, to quote the guide, "You see the actual bedroom in which the great Anglo-American, Sir Winston Churchill, was born."

But what the Americans like most during their stay here are the British people, those "clean-limbed, clear-skinned people of a nation of athletes," to quote a well-known American guide-book.

As for the British, they are startled by the new trend in American tourism — package tours for those who are single-minded in their pursuit of happiness.

Londoners hardly know what to make of the 57 Americans who arrived here recently on the first lap of a 6-city, 22-day dancing tour of Europe. At 10 a. m., instead of watching the Changing of the Guard, these Americans were doing the slow-quick-slow in a London ballroom.

They went on to waltz in Berlin, to rumba in Amsterdam, and, no doubt, to do the fox trot in Copenhagen, Dusseldorf and Paris.

Earlier, Britain was invaded by 220 supersalesmen of the Simplex Time Recorder company of Gardner, Mass., who had been attending sort of floating sales conference aboard the Queen Elizabeth. The Simplex men hit the high spots of England and Scotland, including a stopover in Sherwood Forest where they were made honorary sheriffs of Nottingham.

It was a toss-up whether Britons were more impressed by the drum and bugle corps which accompanied them, or by the gold lame tuxedo coats which some of them wore on more formal occasions.

ROBERT ANGELOCH

Landscape Artist Selected to Judge Library Art Show

Three well-known Woodstock artists will serve as a judging panel for the Saugerties Public Library's forthcoming Outdoor Art Exhibit, slated Saturday, Aug. 13, from 10 a. m. until dusk at the library, according to an announcement by the Planning Committee in charge of the event. Members of the committee, who arranged to secure the services of the three art colony painters, said the well qualified trio of judges will include Robert Angelech, Stefan Lokos and John Pike.

A special treat for art show patrons will be the opportunity to see works of the judges as well as paintings by many Saugerties artists. Each of the three judges will have one of their works of art on exhibit at the Library Art Show.

A biographical sketch of famed watercolorist John Pike appeared in this column earlier. Of the two remaining judges, Robert Angelech has resided in Woodstock for the longer period of time. He is presently being honored with a one-man show of his superlative landscape paintings at the Old Forge Gallery, Tinker Street, Woodstock.

Angelech is particularly well-known as a landscape painter and he presently serves as an instructor in life and landscape Drawing, Painting and Composition at the Art Students League summer school in Woodstock. He has also conducted private landscape classes from his own studio in the Byrdcliffe section of Woodstock, the birthplace of the art colony. His approach to teaching is of interest to those who wish to learn to draw and paint directly from nature.

The youthful artist studied at the Art Students League, Woodstock, from 1946 to 1951; with Flske Boyd in New Hampshire in 1947; and at the Academy of Fine Arts, Florence, Italy, in 1952. He has been the recipient of numerous well-dressed awards and prizes including the Edward G. McDowell Traveling Scholarship in 1951, an Emily Lowe Award in 1955, the Herminie Kleinert Award in 1956 and a Woodstock Foundation Award.

A year-round resident of Woodstock, he has made innumerable painting trips to Monhegan Island off the coast of Maine and collections of drawings executed there have been published by Phantom Press in a series of booklets entitled "Monhegan." These seemingly hastily-drawn sketches of capsule landscapes are strong footnotes to his more important Monhegan works in oil. The painting he will be exhibiting at the Saugerties Library on Aug. 13 is one of his Monhegan series.

He has exhibited widely, gleaned many prizes and, in 1965, had a 10-year retrospective show of his work at the Albany Institute of History and Art. His most recent one-man show, prior to the current exhibition at Old Forge Gallery in Woodstock, was at the Bryant Gallery, Jackson, Miss.

Man Surrenders On Bank Charges, Sought Since July

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Werner Schenk was free on bail totaling $5,000 today after his arraignment on federal and state charges that he robbed two bank tellers of $25,000.

The 34-year-old Xerox Corp. computer specialist, the object of a wide-ranging hunt since July 29, surrendered to FBI agents Friday on a downtown Rochester street.

Schenk, of suburban Irondequoit, was arraigned on a federal charge of bank robbery before U.S. Commissioner Donald Forsyth, who freed him on $2,500 bond. He was ordered to appear for a preliminary examination in U.S. District Court Sept. 8.

Schenk later was taken before Chad Robinson, justice of the peace in suburban Pittsford, where the robbery occurred.

Robinson set Aug. 17 for a hearing on the state charges of grand larceny and first-degree robbery and released Schenk, also on $2,500 bail.

An off-duty city policeman, Salvatore Marcione, discovered two bags of money between railroad tracks and shrubs as he walked Friday in Durand-Eastman Park on the Lake Ontario shore.

Police later said they had counted $6,000 of the money in the bags, believed to be involved in the holdup, and placed the remainder in a vault until the job is completed Monday.

The bills, in small denominations, were wrapped with labels bearing the name of the Security Trust Co.—the bank from which the $25,000 was taken.

Schenk, father of three, is accused of robbing the two women tellers at gunpoint July 29 as they walked across a parking lot from a branch office to a drive-in building.

He attended a staff meeting at the Xerox Scientific Computer Center that morning but had left when police sought to question him.

His automobile was found later in the day about two miles from his home, and police said they discovered bank money wrappers in his office.

Mao's Revolution Designed For New Breed of Chinese

By JON RODERICK
TOKYO (AP)—Mao Tze-tung has decreed a new revolution in Chinese life which may lead to destruction of all he now stands for.

Mao's latest blueprint for the 720 million people he rules calls for tearing the fabric of everyday Chinese existence. It calls on soldiers to become part-time peasants and small-factory managers, on peasants to become part-time factory hands, on the industrial proletariat to dig gardens and run small farms.

The aim is to produce a new breed of Chinese: The peasant-worker and the worker-peasant, a politically aware, militarily trained individual uniting the cultures of city and countryside. A restoration of capitalism, he has been published at all levels in China a few months ago. Opposition to it has touched off the gravest internal crisis in Red China's 17-year history, resulting in a purge which has struck down opponents in the army, the party, the government, and in many fields of culture.

The plan was not disclosed internationally until last Tuesday. The purpose, one directive from Mao, 72, said, is to "prevent a restoration of capitalism, to consolidate the dictatorship of the proletariat and guarantee the gradual transition to communism."

Mao's idea, the directive added, is to turn "every field of work into a great revolutionary school, where people take part both in industry and agriculture, in military as well as civilian affairs."

That Mao may have created a Frankenstein's monster which will one day turn against him and his theories is apparent from the grave resistance the directives have already encountered. They cut across too many lines, step on too many toes, invade too many personal political, military and cultural domains.

Probably more important than the resistance is the slow alchemy of change Mao is proposing to carry out in the Chinese mind.

When man acquires wider knowledge, he tends to become more, rather than less liberal in his outlook.

Instead of a docile animal content to go about his daily round never defiant of higher authority, Mao and his successors may well find, as the die-hard Stalinists did in the Soviet Union a few years ago, that they must deal with fluid, moving explosive forces.

When that day comes, the masses Mao now seeks to manipulate may engulf and overwhelm him or his successors.

SPACE SCORES WITH PUBLIC

Whether it's because nothing succeeds like success, or just because people like to back a winner, the spectacular performance of the Surveyor moon landing in June was reflected in a jump in the number of people supporting the nation's space program.

According to a public opinion survey taken by Trendex just after the flight of the robot, approval of the aims of the program to land men on the moon was expressed by 71.4 per cent of the people questioned.

A sampling made just before the launch found only 64 per cent in favor.

The poll of public attitudes toward space has been taken at irregular intervals over the past three years. It is sponsored by Trikol Chemical Corp., a company with more than an academic interest in the matter.

Samplings in the past have covered not only cities heavily involved in space industries, such as Pasadena, Calif., but such relatively "neutral" cities as Des Moines, Iowa. The latest before-and-after sampling was taken in Cincinnati because previous surveys showed that that city's opinion closely reflects national averages.

Since the polls began, Trendex has found a 16 per cent increase in favorable attitudes toward the moon program and a decline of 34 per cent in unfavorable attitudes.

One item the pollsters consider of interest is a sharp increase in the number of people who are ready to support further planetary exploration immediately following the completion of the Apollo moon program.

DRUNKS ON THE ROAD

Tests made in Wisconsin show that at least two-thirds of the persons killed on that state's roads in the last 18 months had been drinking enough to be classified legally as drunk. This figure is especially pertinent in the light of the current push for safer automobile design.

There is no doubt that automobiles should be designed to provide the utmost in safety. They can be and will be. Yet if the Wisconsin statistics are a reliable indication of the percentage of drunken drivers in other states as well, national laws also should be enacted that will separate the drunken driver from his car keys more effectively than is now the case.

Current laws in some states provide penalties for drunken driving no stiffer than that for littering the highway. Yet the liquor bottle lying at the side of the road is surely less lethal than its contents in a driver's stomach.

Congress has taken an informative look at the construction of automobiles, accompanied by considerable publicity. Now it should continue its efforts toward highway safety by giving the same attention to the relationship between drunkenness and highway deaths.

HOW DRY THEY ARE

Thanks to healthy winter and spring precipitation, waiters in New York restaurants may serve water with meals again without having to be asked and experts have stopped talking about purifying the Hudson River, but the drought which began several years ago in the northeast part of the contry is far from over.

A report released by the U.S. Geological Survey shows that, based on data up to the end of March, 1966, ground-water levels reached record lows in large areas of the Middle Atlantic and New England states.

Global View

NEW YORK (NEA)—It is not only in the affluent capitalist West that youth, in search of new values, is in conflict with the older generation. As in the West, Communist sociologists and educators are disturbed by a disgruntled and skeptical young generation whose attitudes and moral codes bewilder them.

According to Komsomolskaya Pravda, official newspaper of Russia's young Communist League, "young vulgar cynics" write letters to the editor in which they express sympathy for the United States and declare "that they have no intention of killing American soldiers" who have done them no harm.

There even exist young people, Komsomolskaya Pravda reported, "who start dancing when a state funeral march is played and urinate on monuments of Soviet leaders."

Are these merely acts of juvenile delinquency or are they extreme examples of the revision of Russia's youth against the Communist dictatorship?

Historically, East Europe's and Russia's youth was always the mainstay and backbone of opposition to autocracy and tyranny.

Alexander Kerensky was 36 when he became premier of the government that forced the tsar to abdicate in 1917. His democratic regime, in turn, was overthrown by a band of extreme revolutionists of whom Lenin, the oldest, was 47. Leon Trotsky and Joseph Stalin were in their 30s. But almost 50 years after the Communists created their dictatorship little remains of their revolutionary zeal. What revolutionary sentiment is left in Russia is likely to be directed against and not for the Communist regime.

The problem of the rebellious young generation behind the Iron Curtain has a different dimension and a vastly different significance than in the West. For this is the generation, born and reared under communism, that was supposed to build the new classless society.

Instead it is more influenced by the "decadent" life of capitalist society than by the arid doctrine of Marxism-Leninism.

Every regime in East Europe has been forced to come to some sort of terms with youth's desire to follow Western, especially American, trends in art, dress and entertainment.

Gone are the days when wearing "American" blue jeans could mean a summons to police headquarters. The twist and frug are at least tolerated.

No less an authority than Russia's famous ballet impresario Igor Moisseyev warned in an interview in Moscow's Literary Gazette that "the only way to stop the invasion of the twist and frug" is to invent a new lively Communist dance.

He was commenting on a letter to the editor by a group of Russian girls who complained, "One can't dance the waltz in the age of Sputniks and electronic brains."

However, it is not only because their native dances now seem old-fashioned that "American" dances became popular with young men and women in Communist society.

More important is the aura of glamor which surrounds everything Western—a glamor made even more potent by the strident propaganda attacks of the Communist regimes.

Your Dental Health

Immediate Dentures in One Smooth, Painless Operation

Mrs. M never quite got over the shock of sudden death of her well-known author husband. Feeling alone in the world, and filled with grief, she completely neglected herself physically and mentally. She had little desire to live and no desire to adjust to her new situation.

The spark of life was gone. She lost 81 pounds. She looked awful. Her teeth were a mess. They rotted away, beyond repair, some of them merely stumps.

She says she often thought of taking care of her teeth and getting them repaired, but she "just couldn't face up to it."

What finally happened to Mrs. M? Her dramatic weight loss worried her physician. He insisted on dental rehabilitation so that his patient would be able to chew solid food. With persistent efforts he got her to agree to dental consultation.

After much consideration, Mrs. M. had all her teeth out, or what was left of them, and full dentures made.

What's so remarkable about that?

IT WAS DONE IN ONE OPERATION by a method generally referred to as "Immediate Denture Technique."

About two weeks before hospitalization, impressions of upper and lower teeth and jaws were taken and reproductions of them were cast in stone. These upper and lower stone models were then mounted on an instrument that duplicated natural positions and movements of patient's jaw.

Teeth were then cut from the stone models, and as each tooth was removed, an artificial one was put in its place. On completion upper and lower artificial teeth were same size, same position in the jaw, and with same general contours as patient's own teeth. The finished dentures were made from these models.

Patient was hospitalized two days prior to her operation so that she could be medically evaluated and properly fed, prepared and medicated.

Then came the operation which lasted about half-hour. Patient was put to sleep. All teeth were extracted. Bone and soft tissue were trimmed. Stitches were taken in gums to hold them together. And Mrs. M's new teeth were put in place!

When she awoke from anesthesia her new teeth were in her mouth. Patient was so pleased with her looks it perked her up amazingly.

It may have changed her whole life.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

Ground water—the snows and rains of yesteryear which have seeped into water-bearing rocks the geologists call aquifers—is what hundreds of communities depend upon for their water supply. It is also what streams depend upon for normal flow during the growing season.

The streamflows were also found to be at record lows over much of the area. In Massachusetts, for example, the deficiency in streamflow for a 56-month period ending in March amounted to two full years of normal runoff.

The significant point brought out by the report is that unlike agricultural drought (lack of timely crop-nourishing rains), "the manifestations of water-supply drought tend to persist and intensify from one growing season to the next."

Even though enough precipitation may occur to water crops, pastures and forests, this moisture may not be enough to recharge the aquifers.

This is the situation in the northeast today, and it promises to be one that will be with the region for a long time to come.

Tension

WASHINGTON (NEA)—After months of planning, a key group of senators and representatives is set for a showdown with Defense Secretary McNamara over the confusion and equipment shortages that militate against the combat readiness of the Reserves.

These legislators are chagrined that McNamara has kept the Reserves in turmoil and confusion for more than two years while he attempted to push controversial changes through Congress. Their chagrin has been intensified by strong letters from constituent reservists caught in the "no one knows what's going to happen next" situation.

These lawmakers are disturbed that Reserve units don't have sufficient amounts of the modern equipment they need to go into battle efficiently if called in an emergency. The congressmen have received sharp letters from men in these units. They've verified the charges by on-the-spot inspection trips.

The men on Capitol Hill are angry, too, that McNamara has gone ahead piecemeal on changes in the Reserves which Congress had flatly turned down. These determined legislators on the Senate and House Armed Services Committees are grabbing the ball from McNamara's hands.

In similar bills presented to the House and Senate: They're telling McNamara the minimum number of men he must keep in battle-ready units of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps "immediate reserve" and the "reinforcing reserve."

They're requiring that funds designated by Congress for the Reserves and arms and equipment bought with those funds be used for the Reserves and not diverted to other military uses except with express Congressional approval.

They're requiring that all units in the "immediate reserve" (ready for action within eight weeks after callup) and the "reinforcing reserve" be provided with all the modern arms, supplies and equipment they need to go into battle.

They're creating a new assistant secretary of defense and new assistant secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force whose principal duties would be to see to it that the will of Congress was carried out in insuring the combat readiness of the Reserves.

Senators and representatives promoting the bills are convinced they have a majority of both houses with them. The support seems to come from both the Democratic and Republican sides of the Congress.

If the proposals go through as now written, this will be the strongest slap that Congress has handed McNamara.

But the legislation should also cut the confusion and turbulence in the Reserves and let reservists get ahead more efficiently with their job of preparing for emergencies.

It's been difficult when many reservists didn't know what direction they were heading because of McNamara's fight with the legislators.

At most of the antique shows, various dealers have boxes of cards, one of a kind mostly and I look through them. If they are reasonable and I find a few which interest me, I treat myself. No doubt they were used not only in the states but also in foreign countries and are now in Museums. DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

It seems strange that the first day of issue of the Frank Lloyd Wright two cent stamp came out on June 8th and the Bill of Rights stamp came out on July 1st. Frank Lloyd Wright was the world renowned architect who designed homes and buildings.

These two stamps make a good pair. Sir Edward Coke, gave the world the famous phrase, "For a man's house is his castle," which many a householder of the Broadway east wonders about now. He was a great English jurist and author of many law books, in fact some of the first law books. He was the son of a Norfolkshire gentleman. He was born back in 1551 and died September 1634. His famous words have won thousands of cases for the "little man" during the last 300 years.

Now the Bill of Rights stamp comes out with the saying: "The rights of the people shall not be violated!" yet this new movement of forceful eviction of owners and householders is going on all over the country. It is not always just for road building or for bridges, but often for private enterprises and even they are getting scarce.

Perhaps the Bill of Rights stamp should be put on all the mails sent to the powers that be, but no doubt they never see their mail, and especially the envelopes. Somehow the Bill of Rights does not seem to protect the householder any longer in our type of communities. And I wonder, when they are moved against their will with a forced sale and condemnation, will they be chased out again, and again, where will it all end. Anyway I see the banks are building their new branches in Colonial Style.

I received the following letter from H. Edward Woods of Kensington, Conn. He writes in part: I passed through Saugerties Thursday evening, July 21st, and picked up a copy of the Freeman.

I read your column with great interest. I am a post card collector. (pre-1915). I am glad you got a card on the Troy Bank, but what interested me most was the cards you mention of Berlin Trolley's. Is this Berlin, Conn? If the party you obtained them from has any more I would like to buy them. Are yours for sale? My dad operated one of the Berlin, Conn. trolley's as a young man some 50 years ago. My type-writer just broke down. I hope this is legible, etc.

Raft Is Friendly Host At London Gambling Club

LONDON — (NEA)—George Raft, 68, finds that playing gangster roles in Hollywood is kid stuff compared to his present job as host at one of London's poshest gambling clubs.

From 8:30 p. m. until dawn, seven nights a week, Raft toils at the Colony Sporting Club, which never closes until the last gambler goes home. Here he greets old friends such as Frank Sinatra, William Holden and Lucille Ball, who drop by whenever they are in London.

But Raft, in his new role of resident host, also finds time to shake hands with middle-aged American tourists, who remember him when he was billed as "the Valentino with the patent leather hair."

Resnick Requests Action to Avoid Food Rationing

"Unless we take drastic action in the immediate future, we will face the very real possibility of rationing of dairy products which is without precedent in this country in peace time."

That comment came from Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick in a statement on Thursday before the House of Representatives in Washington. Resnick said he had the honor and pleasure of accompanying Orville Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture to New York City where he testified before the City Council on the rising cost of food, especially bread and milk.

Comments Freeman

"In my opinion, Secretary Freeman did a masterful job and is to be commended for his statement," Resnick said. "I think that all of my colleagues here in the House, indeed all Americans, should read this statement, for it contains facts that we all need to know. With this in mind I ask my colleagues to let it be included in the record."

Resnick's statement continues: "However, I feel that the Secretary did not go far enough in stating the dangers that face every American consumer, especially of dairy products. Based on the statistics that I have been studying, I have reached the conclusion that in the months to come it will no longer be a question of high prices for milk, butter, cheese and ice cream; it will be a question of the availability of these products at any price. Unless we take drastic action in the immediate future, we will face the very real possibility of rationing of dairy products which is without precedent in the country in peace time."

"While the production of other crops, such as cereals, beef, and poultry, can be increased in a relatively short time, it takes years to increase milk production for this is the time that it takes for a calf to be put into production. As of today our dairy herds are still being slaughtered for use as meat because the price of meat is so high and the return to dairy farmers for dairy products is so low."

Milk Production Low

"In the year 1900 we had more dairy cows than we have today. Summer is the traditional time of high milk production. Yet this June, production was off 3 percent from June of 1965 and virtually the same as in January of 1965. For many years we have been living on our accumulated surpluses of dried milk, butter, and cheese. These are long since gone and so our requirements must be met by our day-to-day production which is increasingly becoming inadequate. I fear that in the months ahead producers will continue to slaughter off their herds and our production will continue to slip even though we are facing ever-increasing domestic and foreign demands."

Proposes Payment Plan

"Mr. Speaker: It is my firm conviction that it is in the best interests of both the consumer and the farmer that a system of production payments be made to milk producers. I feel that production payments will be the fastest and most economical way to stimulate this much-needed production. What has happened in New York City is happening all over. The farmer is getting a penny more for his milk but the consumer is paying three cents more. The consumer is outraged at this increase while in fact the bulk of the increase is going to those organizations who handle and distribute dairy products. With direct production payments the farmer would receive enough additional income to permit him to continue to expand his herds and the consumer would not be subjected to unwarranted and unconscionable increases. The cost to the taxpayers would be far less than the continuous drift toward inflation."

"The dairy farmer in America today is earning about 60 cents an hour. I don't think very many of us would be interested in investing our time, energy, and money in an enterprise which would return like this. I strongly urge both my colleagues and the Administration to examine these facts and act upon them quickly."

List Schedule

tour of original houses dating from 1678 continues through 5 p. m. today.

On Monday half-hour tours of the wild bird sanctuary will be conducted from 10 a. m. to 12 noon. At 2 p. m. Heinz-Meng of the State University College will present a talk on hawks and the ancient art of falconry using live birds to illustrate the lecture. The event will be held on the Ellington Library Grounds or, in case of rain, at town hall.

Tours and exhibits are planned on a daily basis at many local points of interest. Information may be obtained at the New Paltz Chamber of Commerce Information Booth on the Badami property, Route 299 East.

Report 2 Bike Thefts

Thefts of two bicycles were reported to local police within a half hour Friday night. Police received the first report 5:03 p. m. from David Naccarato of 44 West Union Street, who said his bicycle had been taken from Montgomery Ward's parking lot on Albany Avenue Extension. Later, at 5:25 p. m., Fred Harder reported his bike was stolen from his home on 72 Cedar Street. Police are investigating the reports.

Haines Falls PM Is Named by Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson today sent to the Senate these postmaster nominations:

NEW YORK—Mary J. Donato, Dewittville; Aloys V. Smith, Garrettsville; Mary C. Berger, Grafton; Marwood S. Myer, Haines Falls; C. Ross McCluskey, Hopewell Junction; Marian G. Flugal, Morton; Ethel W. Andrus, Silver Bay; Anthony Maiorano, West Haverstraw; Paul J. Ennis, West Henrietta.

Says People Are Still Dying From Hiroshima Bomb

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — People are still dying from the after effects of an atomic bomb dropped on this city 21 years ago, the mayor said during solemn anniversary ceremonies today.

Sirens, church bells and temple gongs echoed through the reconstructed city at 8:15 a. m. Residents bowed their heads in one minute of silent prayer. At that moment on Aug. 6, 1945 an American B29 Superfortress dropped a 20-kiloton atomic bomb — equal to 20,000 tons of TNT — from the summer sky.

It exploded 2,460 feet over the center of the city, killing between 80,000 and 200,000 persons. The Japanese believe the higher total. The Americans say the lower figure is more accurate.

As the sirens wailed today hundreds of pigeons were released from the city's Peace Park and some 30,000 citizens watched as Mayor Shinzo Hamai placed a new list of 550 additional bomb victims in the stone receptacle under the saddle-shaped concrete cenotaph.

The list included 482 who died under the blast, but whose identities became only recently known, and 68 who died during the past 12 months of what is known in Japan as "atomic diseases." The new list brings the number of confirmed, identified dead to 61,993 from the bomb and its effects.

No Loss of Planes

The military spokesman reported no losses in Friday's raids on the north and said the 15 missiles fired at U.S. pilots all missed.

Other key targets in Friday's air strikes against North Vietnam were oil storage facilities and radar sites near the port city of Haiphong.

Navy planes from carriers in the South China Sea attacked the Do So oil dump 17 miles southeast of Haiphong. The U.S. command said pilots reported they left the target in flames.

Air Force planes hit radar sites 10 to 15 miles northwest of Haiphong, but no results were announced.

Navy planes also attacked an oil depot 45 miles northwest of Vinh on the coast, and a large secondary explosion was reported.

Say 4 Condemn Policy

In other developments: —Communist sources reported that four American airmen in the hands of the North Vietnamese have condemned U.S. policy in Viet Nam and have called for a halt in the fighting. They were identified as Lt. Cmdr. Wendell B. Rivers of the carrier Coral Sea, Lt. Cmdr. James Hutton of the carrier Independence, Maj. Raymond James Merritt from the Air Force base at Korat, Thailand, and Maj. James Young of the Air Force base at Udorn, Thailand.

—Tran Kim Phung, South Vietnamese ambassador to Malaysia, described as welcome and "very logical" the proposal of Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman that Asian nations take the initiative in setting up a Viet Nam peace conference. But he said it was "very doubtful" that Red China and North Viet Nam would go along.

Motorcycle Recovered

Local police recovered a motorcycle reportedly stolen Friday night within an hour of receiving the call. The cycle which was owned by James Pasco of 447 Washington Avenue, was reported stolen from North Front Street about 3:30 a. m. Police found the cycle 36 minutes later in front of Franklin Pharmacy on Broadway and returned it to its owner. Detectives Floyd Krum and Albert Hutton were in charge.

Hits Parked Car

No injuries were reported after an accident 4 p. m. Friday when Kingston police say a car operated by Pearl Bond, 11 Spaulding Lane, Saugerties backed into a vehicle owned by William A. Osterhout of Olivebridge parked in the Benedictine Hospital parking lot.

Ellington Wins Tennessee Vote; Clement Victor

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Buford Ellington, a political ally of President Johnson, won the Democratic nomination for governor of Tennessee Thursday in a close battle with a political novice allied with the Kennedy family.

In the U.S. Senate primary, Gov. Frank G. Clement unseated Sen. Ross Bass in a race which was not decided until after 90 percent of the vote had been counted. With 2,520 of the state's 2,741 precincts reported, Clement had 339,997 while Bass had 331,019.

Dirksen's Kin Winner

Howard H. Baker Jr., son-in-law of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., swamped a more conservative candidate to take the Republican senatorial nomination.

Ellington had 368,443 votes to 322,535 for John J. Hooker Jr. Baker polled 103,164 and Kenneth Roberts 33,636.

Two Negro civil rights leaders became the first of their race to gain election to the County Court of Haywood County in West Tennessee. Dan Nixon and A. D. Powell, both farmers, took narrow victories in the county which has been the scene of several racial incidents in recent months.

Hooker, 35, conceded defeat just two hours after the first returns from Shelby County (Memphis) — the state's largest — were reported in Ellington's column.

Bass, who defeated Clement in 1964 to fill the unexpired term of the late Sen. Estes Kefauver, had put his record of 10 years in the House and two in the Senate on the line against the governor.

Clement, rounding out his third term as governor, had accused Bass of being a "rubber stamp" for the Johnson administration. By law, Clement could not succeed himself.

work. I don't want her to have to face the embarrassment that my actions will surely cause her."

At this point, Whitman apparently was interrupted. The rest of the note was in handwriting. It began:

"At 3 a. m. both dead."

The rest of the note, the source said, concerned Whitman's feelings and his relationship with his father. According to statements released from other sources, the University of Texas student mentioned in the handwritten portion that he "hated his father with a mortal passion."

The neatly hand-printed note found at the plush apartment of his mother was addressed to "to whom it may concern" and began:

Out of Pain, Misery

"I have just killed my mother. If there is a heaven she is going there. If there's not a heaven, she is out of her pain and misery."

"I love my mother with all my heart."

Once again, Whitman wrote an attack on his father, mentioning his opinions about the relationship of his parents.

The grand jury Thursday held the notes from the public because they "contained universal statements of an insane killer concerning an innocent individual."

The grand jury report also said Whitman was "a crazy, deranged" man who killed his wife, his mother and then carried an arsenal to the University of Texas tower to kill another 13, including an unborn baby, and wound 31 with gunfire.

Expect Autopsy Report to Clarify Sniper's Anguish

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A full autopsy report expected Monday may further clarify the anguish which drove sniper Charles Joseph Whitman to kill 13 persons and wound 31 more from his perch in the University of Texas tower.

The report is one the blond, former Marine himself requested in a note found after his death at the hands of police.

"I wish an autopsy to be performed on me," he wrote, "to see if there's any mental disorder."

May Detail Tumor

The report may detail the nature of a pea-sized benign tumor found at the stem of Whitman's brain that Dr. Coleman deChenar of Austin said "could not have had any influence on his psychic behavior."

The autopsy is also expected to show whether Whitman was under the influence of pep pills or other drugs when he began his 80-minute reign of terror.

Discussion about the sniper and speculation on his motives continued even in the shadow of the tower where the midday drama took place. Notes left behind were revealing.

There was no explanation, however, of why he spared the lives of two people who he encountered after shooting a tower attendant.

Inexplicably, Whitman smiled and said, "Hi, how are you?" to Don Walden, 22, of San Antonio and Cheryl Botts, 18, of Rockdale, who apparently came on him as he pushed the body of Edna Townsley behind a couch.

The couple did not see the body. Moments later the massacre continued.

Infant Is Treated For Head Injuries

A two-and-a-half year old child was treated at Benedictine Hospital Friday for head injuries which he sustained when he fell inside a car. Police said Wayne Van De Mark of Kerhonkson fell over in the car which was driven by his father. The infant apparently struck his head on the side of the car when the vehicle came to a sudden stop, a police report said.

Will Quiz Four Youth Following Chicago Shooting

CHICAGO (AP) — A band of Negro teen-agers shot and wounded two white youths Friday night and sporadic gunfire was reported in several other areas of the far South Side.

Four youths were taken into custody for questioning. One of the victims was wounded in the back, the other in the right arm. Both were hit by .22 caliber bullets.

The youths, James Arvia and Joseph Adams, both 17, said they were shot from a passing car as they stood in the parking lot of a hamburger stand on 103rd Street.

The gunfire was a continuation of random violence and bloodshed that has resulted in the deaths of two persons, and the wounding of at least 15 others in outbreaks on the South, West and Northwest sides since Thursday night. Some of the incidents have been traced to rivalry between youthful gangs, but others were unrelated.

ment. And, she sentimentally was provided with a sapphire and other mementos to carry on her wedding day.

She preferred the formal wedding and picked a pink and white theme. Her 12 bridesmaids, including her sister, Lynda, the maid of honor, lead the slow-paced procession in their stately floor-length pink dresses down the 352-foot-long aisle of polished marble.

A 150-voice male choir provides choral music, accompanied by a twin pipe organ with 9,138 pipes.

The president, bridegroom Nugent and his 12 groomsmen had cutaways — striped trousers and morning coats — for the occasion. All but the President's were rented.

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of Washington joined in the celebration of the Nuptial Mass along with two priests who had been religious advisers of the bride and groom.

The marriage ceremony itself began a few minutes after the Mass started.

View Not the Best

Most of the wedding guests, as well as the President and Mrs. Johnson who had front row seats, had trouble seeing the wedding ceremony itself. It took place in the vast sanctuary of the church — more than 100 feet from the first row of pews.

The setting was splendid. From an arch behind the altar, a great gold and red mosaic "Christ in Majesty" — 3,600 square feet — looks down.

The long marble altar stands beneath a high marble canopy which is supported by 20-foot rose-colored marble columns. Luci and Nugent knelt on white satin pillows in front of the altar for the 10-minute wedding ceremony performed by the Rev. John A. Kuzinkas of Chicago, a lifelong friend of the bridegroom.

Solemn, Ancient Rite

In the solemn, ancient marriage ceremony, first Nugent read Luci said "I do." Separately, they recited the pledge "to have and to hold, from this day forward, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, until death do us part."

And with the sealing of the marriage bond came the admonition: "Man must not separate what God has joined together." The archbishop said in his blessing, "May cares never cease to distress, nor the desire for earthly possessions lead you astray."

In the exchange of rings, Luci placed on Nugent's finger a gold band she designed. He placed two diamond bands on hers in an unusual sequence. Luci worked out to have her oval-diamond engagement ring centered between two wedding rings.

Engaged Christmas Eve

Luci and her bridegroom met only a little over a year ago and became engaged last Christmas Eve. Their friendship blossomed at the time Luci converted to Catholicism on her 18th birthday in July 1965.

The bridegroom's parents were the hosts Friday night at a wedding rehearsal dinner and dance in an exclusive private club. It lasted until a little after midnight and young Nugent pointed to his watch to the amusement of the crowd of 300 as he left for home.

At the gay celebration, the President told how proud he was of Luci, his bouncy, happy, loving, religious and poetry-loving daughter.

He said he and Mrs. Johnson "are getting the kind of son we always wanted," and he declared, "I am a very happy man."

Murray Refuses To Concede Loss Of House Office

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A small-town businessman claimed victory Friday night over Rep. Tom Murray, D-Tenn., chairman of the House Post Office Committee who sought nomination to a 13th term in Thursday's primary election.

Ray Blanton, a member of the legislature, led Murray by 392 votes with 9 of 311 precincts in the state's 7th District uncounted. Four of the delayed boxes were from Blanton's home county.

"From all indications it looks like I won the race," said Blanton, a vigorous campaigner. Murray, who did not campaign, said from Washington he would not concede until the returns were made official Monday.

As returns from the Tennessee Democratic senatorial primary continued to trickle in, Gov. Frank G. Clement's margin of victory over Sen. Ross Bass, D-Tenn., increased to 11,000.

Bass withheld his concession statement until midday Friday. Clement, who lost to Bass by over 97,000 votes in the 1964 primary, will face Howard H. Baker Jr. in the Nov. 8 general election. Baker, son-in-law of Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., gained a landslide victory in the Republican primary.

Most of the state's attention in the elections Thursday had been focused on the race for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Buford Ellington, a former governor who resigned as President Johnson's director of the Office of Emergency Planning to seek the nomination, won by 50,000 votes over John J. Hooker Jr., a 35-year-old Nashville lawyer associated with the family of President John F. Kennedy.

Republicans did not field a gubernatorial candidate.

Man Is Fined $10 After Car Runs Up Hunter St. House

William E. Jansen, 240 South Wall Street was issued a summons for speeding late Friday night after the car he was driving reportedly careened off Hunter Street and ran up the front porch of a house on that local road.

According to police reports, Jansen's vehicle was making a right turn from Hone Street when he apparently lost control, causing the car to leave the road and run into property owned by Curtis Van De Mark on 78 Hunter Street.

Jansen was fined $10 in City Court today.

King Felled . . .

days a week in Chicago working on a campaign to eliminate slums, said after the march: "We shall have to keep coming back until we are safe from harassment. Until Negroes can move into the neighborhood the tenets of freedom will continue to decay."

Violence first broke out in Chicago's Loop, 7 1/2 miles from downtown Chicago, last Sunday. Sixty persons were injured, 17 were arrested and more than 30 of the marchers' cars were burned.

The demonstration Friday began in the racially tense area when four groups went to separate real estate offices to picket. When the demonstrators milled into Marquette Park, a scenic, recreation area, to form for the march, they were met with jeers, catcalls, curses, rocks and bottles from the white residents, mostly youths.

More than 2,000 whites milled around King after he was struck, screaming "white power" and throwing rocks. They also stopped cars which brought the marchers into the area.

Residents perched in trees and dropped eggs, fire crackers and rocks on the marchers. The marchers — white and Negro, men and women, priests and nuns — marched slowly and doggedly forward.

Some residents stood on front porches taking motion pictures of the scene.

When the demonstrators knelt to pray, fire crackers were thrown into the kneeling group, and the crowd screamed obscenities and waved banners.

More than 1,200 helmeted policemen, swinging clubs, charged into the howling mobs of whites to disperse them.

A group of whites attacked a white policeman, knocked him to the ground and stomped on him. Other policemen came to his rescue.

Seven hours after the first demonstrators showed up at real estate offices, the glass and rock-strewn neighborhood of Chicago's Loop returned to a semblance of normalcy.

One Person Injured As Car Hits Pole

One person was injured about 2 a. m. today when a car was reported forced off East Chester Street bypass and rammed into a Central Hudson wire pole. Local police say Raymond Thompson of East Kingston was treated at Benedictine Hospital for minor teeth injuries. He is a passenger in the car which was being driven by Marilyn Thompson at the time of the mishap.

Report Wallace Not Worried on Word of Threat

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — "There've been things like this before, the governor's not worried," is one aide's reaction to still unverified reports that six youths are on their way to Alabama bent on killing Gov. George C. Wallace.

The governor's press secretary, Jack House, said Friday night that Wallace had changed no plans for public appearances this weekend as a result of the reported threat.

Wallace remained silent on the rumor.

However, two more state troopers were assigned to the governor's usual three-man security staff, and highway patrol cars were alerted to be on the lookout for cars with six occupants.

The FBI notified state police Thursday night that six unidentified youths had reportedly left Washington, D.C. for Montgomery in a car bearing an Alabama license tag.

An FBI spokesman said the bureau had been tipped regarding the threat by a Washington television station, which it later declined to identify.

The FBI source said an employee of the station was told by an anonymous telephone caller: "I will not repeat this, so listen carefully. Six youths have just left Washington 20 minutes ago to kill Gov. Wallace. This is not a prank. I know what I'm talking about. I shine shoes with these boys."

Wallace's press aide said there have been threats on the governor's life before "during his travels mostly."

He said previous threats have proven to be from cranks.

Youth Summoned For Leaving Scene

Issued a summons Friday for leaving the scene of an accident 7:42 p. m. was James Murtagh, 17, of 61 East Chester Street, whose vehicle police said backed into a car parked on Aubryn Street.

According to a police report, a car owned by Marie Dispensa, 73 West Pierpont Street was parked west of East Strand when Murtagh's vehicle allegedly backed into the left.

Murtagh's case was adjourned in City Court today to Tuesday, Aug. 9.

Will Evacuate 880

HAVANA (AP) — The Swiss Embassy, with the cooperation of the Cuban and Mexican governments, has arranged for the evacuation of 880 stranded U.S. citizens.

The group which has been waiting to leave Cuba for two years will start leaving on commercial flights, via Mexico City, next Friday, but it is expected to take 18 months for all of the U.S. citizens and their Cuban relatives to be evacuated.

A Swiss Embassy spokesman, who announced the evacuation Friday said the group, counting Cuban relatives, totals 2,700. Prime Minister Fidel Castro had refused to permit their departure via the regular Cuban refugee airlift to Florida.

Woman Fire Victim

MEDINA, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Joseph Menke, about 60, died today in a fire that damaged her home in this Orleans County community.

Fire officials said the fire may have been started by a cigarette.

There was no estimate of the damage to the 2 1/2-story frame house.

Mrs. Menke lived at 400 W. Center St.

Argentina Problems

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The Argentine government, whose takeover of state universities sparked violence, faculty resignations, and widespread criticism says a government committee will be appointed to reorganize the schools.

A spokesman said Friday the 10-member committee will be asked to "wipe out communism and other extremism" and predicted its members would be conservative, Roman Catholic professors.

Buffalo Youth Killed

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — James Emerson, 18, of Buffalo, was killed today when his automobile struck a light pole on the Niagara section of the Thruway north of here.

The accident occurred at the Sheridan Drive exit.

He lived at 85 Shenandoah Rd.

Final Panel Held In Marist College Theology Institute

Over 500 people from the Hudson Valley's religious communities packed Champagnat Hall on the Marist College campus last night to hear a panel discussion on the Second Vatican Council's decree on religious life. The panel discussion was the last of a three part series held by the Marist Institute of Theology, designed to make several of the documents of Vatican II more meaningful to Christian educators and laymen alike.

The Rev. Paul D'Arcy, Director of Education of the Maryknoll Seminary, was the first to address the standing-room-only audience who later joined in the discussion of what constitutes the essential elements of the religious life. Father D'Arcy stated: "This decree possesses a middle degree of significance for us. It contains several general principles to be followed by specific directives," but its various phrases have many possible meanings, Father D'Arcy said. He reminded his listeners that the theme of Vatican II was the emphasis on renewal and adaptation; saying "The Church needs renewal in religious life more than in any other area."

Speaking next was Sister Joan Bland, Professor of theology at Trinity College in Washington, D. C. Commenting on the vow of celibacy, Sister Bland stated "Our celibacy is meaningless unless it is accompanied by charity... charity which must be predominantly clear to the world."

Mr. John Leo, Associate Editor of Commonweal Magazine then described what he felt were the inequities of religious life. "The church assumes that the clergy has a monopoly on holiness," said Mr. Leo when stating why the Protestant sects are finding fault with this document. Mr. Leo said that many in-human elements are built into religious life by outdated, inflexible regulations. In calling for an organizational reform of the religious life Mr. Leo said "... that the binding rules and regulations and the built in humilities must be dropped, if one is to rid of reform of a military image." If reform is to be carried out, then it must start at the bottom with the free election of religious supervisors, Mr. Leo said.

Winding up the evening's discussion was Brother Thomas Ryan of Manhattan College. In speaking on the need for a more human approach in the religious life, Brother Ryan dwelt on the subject of free elections saying "Too often in religious orders, when a person rises from the ranks... he never returns. This is what we are trying to eliminate and the Council's decree has been a big step in this area."

Participants in the third annual Institute of Theology still have two more weeks remaining in their summer study which is designed to bring them fully abreast of contemporary developments in theology. Highlighting these last two weeks of the institute will be a course taught by Rev. James M. Connolly, of Saint Joseph's Seminary in Yonkers, entitled "The Theology of History and Approaches to Ecumenism."

YWCA Is Starting Boarding Program At Local Facility

A new service is being planned by the Room Registry Committee of the YWCA it was announced by Mrs. Henry Eighmey, chairman of the committee. A list is being compiled of rooms which are available for overnight rental or for living quarters. The YWCA receives frequent requests for rooms from people unfamiliar with the community.

Anyone having a room or rooms available who would like to make application to be included on this list is urged to call the YWCA.

The YWCA is a member agency of the Community Chest.

Cornell Has Plan To Aid Nation's Building Industry

A unique program to help the nation's ailing construction industry has been started at Cornell University's College of Engineering.

The program, believed to be the first of its type, is financed in part by the Commerce Department. Its purpose is to acquaint the construction industry with modern technology and the latest management methods. It then will help the construction engineer apply the knowledge. One of its principal goals is to give the construction industry weapons for combating technological obsolescence which hits the construction industry particularly hard.

An unusual feature of Cornell's program is a plan for continuing contact between the construction engineer and an engineering faculty member on a regular basis during the year. The new program includes visits by faculty members to the engineer's place of work.

Cornell officials said it is hoped the course will help solve the problem of obsolescence of engineers which is especially severe in the construction industry because of the special problems and unusual nature of the industry.

The program is designed for participants who have a college-level engineering background. No degree is required, however, and no grade requirements for admission have been set. It is expected that most of the new participants will be from the northeast area of the United States so that continuing contact during the year can be maintained easily.

Resident courses will be started in January, 1967, when some 25 engineers are expected to be admitted to the program and spend two weeks on the campus.

The program will be administered through the College of Engineering's Office of Continuing Education directed by Julian C. Smith.

To be eligible for supplementary medical insurance when you become 65, you must file your application in one of the three months before the month of your 65th birthday. Hospital insurance protection starts as soon as you apply.

Cub Pack 9 Has Picnic

The July pack meeting of Pack 9 sponsored by the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer was held at Tongore Park. There were approximately 80 Cubs and parents attending a family picnic under sunny skies. The events included swimming for all ages. A tug of war between the boys and then the ladies. Softball was played under the direction of Chet Fox.

Cubmaster Blankschian assisted by Webelos Leader Harold Burger made the following announcements: Den 1, den mother, Mrs. Lillian Cameron and assistant Mrs. Constance Glaser has Douglas Rockwell, Kurt and Kevin Klaser receiving their Lion Badges. Den 2, den mother, Mrs. Kathryn Krause, has Monte Kramer advancing to Bear and receiving a gold and silver arrow under Bear.

The following announcements were made: Cub Day at Tri-Mount Aug. 13. All Cubs and families planning on attending contact den mothers. Those going consult newsletter for details. Next pack meeting will be held Sept. 19.

A closing was held by the cubmaster and assistant cubmaster who read the outdoor code for Cub Scouts. Everyone enjoyed a watermelon which was donated by Mrs. Carr.

Four Webelos and two Lion cub scouts attended the Webelos Cub Weekend. Those attending were as follows: James Cameron and his father, James Cameron; Robert Burhans and his father, Robert Burhans; Donald Herring and his father, Donald Herring; Lions Cub Scouts Alan Lenza and father, Alphonso Lenza, and Douglas Rockwell and his father, James Rockwell. The Webelos will be graduated into Troop 9 at the September pack meeting.

Dear Abby...

Don't Sit and Sulk—Discuss the Matter

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a teeth grinder. When he sleeps he grinds his teeth like you wouldn't believe. He ate three inches of lace off his pillow slip.

I can't go into another room because the beds are full of kids, so I go into the bathroom and read until my eyes are crossed. Please, help me.

RAW NERVES

DEAR RAW: If you husband won't go willingly to his dentist, bind, gag, and drag him there. Modern dental techniques have helped many a teeth grinder. Don't put it off. He is ruining not only your health, but his teeth.

P. S. And take those lace-edged pillow slips off his pillow. He could CHOKe to death.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound strange, but in the four years my husband and I have been married, we have never had a fight. Oh, we've had plenty of disagreements, but we have never settled any of them. When my husband is mad about something, he just sits and sulks. He won't even tell me what's wrong.

I am as bad as he is. When I'm mad, I just hold everything inside. I get a lump in my throat and tears in my eyes and I keep quiet. Sometimes I wish we could bring all our complaints out in the open and have a good old-fashioned shouting argument, but I honestly wouldn't know how to start one. Can you give me some suggestions?

NEEDS A FIGHT

DEAR NEEDS: You are wise to want to "bring your complaints out into the open." Allowing unresolved tensions to build up inside can cause one major explosion far more serious than several minor ones. No married couple can agree on EVERYTHING unless one of them is a vegetable.

When something bothers you, swallow that lump in your throat, let the tears fall where they may and keep talking until you make sense. Don't spout off in anger in an effort to hurt the other, but describe your feelings honestly.

This is sure to provoke some sort of reaction in your husband. He'll either deny or affirm, defend or counter-attack, justify or apologize. And before you know it, you'll have cleared the air.

DEAR ABBY: A daughter who was very much concerned over her mother's sudden drinking problem wrote, "Abby, why should a loving, respected grandmother turn to alcohol after all these years?"

Had that daughter reread her own letter, she would have discovered the answer. She wrote: "Mother started drinking a few years ago when dad retired."

I know exactly how she feels. My husband is also retired, and I'd drink, too, if I could afford it.

GOING CRAZY IN MIAMI

CONFIDENTIAL TO A VERY KIND MINISTER IN BARSTOW, CALIF.: Forgive me if I gave the impression that the apocryphal tale about the biblical Sarah and Abraham, which was sent to me by a reader, was indeed FROM the Old Testament.

It was not. But I will repeat the answer to all human problems can be found between the two covers of the Bible. "Seek and ye shall find."

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069 for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Cadette Scouts
Need Leaders
To Head Troops

The Girl Scout Neighborhood Service Team of New Palts is busy making plans and preparing for the fall season when Girl Scout activities will again commence. The outlook is quite good for many levels of the program. A large number of girls in New Palts have enrolled in Girl Scouts, and there is a need to be met by the good work of many fine leaders and interested parents and by the cooperation of Town and Village organizations. However, there is still a need for leaders on several levels; one area is particularly pressing.

Fifty girls will be Cadette Scouts this fall. These girls have had between four and five years of Scouting and have completed Brownie and Junior programs. As Cadettes they are ready for perhaps the most rewarding three years in Girl Scouts. The cadette program stresses camping and outdoor life and also prepares girls for the International aspects of Scouting they will experience as Seniors.

These 50 girls are fine, interested Scouts and leaders are needed for them. Two troops will be formed in this group and the call for volunteers is out. Previous experience is not necessary. What is needed are women who are interested in girls; who like working with them; and who have the desire to spend some rewarding hours in a most worthwhile way.

Any volunteer will have the benefit of a fine Leader Training Program and the added advantage of help and support from the energetic and experienced local Girl Scout Service Team. The team is confident that this request for help will not go unheeded.

Neighborhood Chairman, Mrs. Albert Metcalf, Troop Organizer, Mrs. William Pugh, and others are on hand to receive calls from anyone interested in answering this appeal.

Witnesses Will Attend Conclave

Jehovah's Witnesses of the New Palts Congregation are completing preparations to form a delegation to a five-day convention in Baltimore, Md.

The Witnesses will be among 50,000 or more persons attending the God's Sons of Liberty District Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses, to be held in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium, Aug. 17-21. A special public Bible discourse will climax the five-day assembly, Sunday, Aug. 21, Fred W. Franz, vice-president of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, will speak on the subject, "What Has God's Kingdom Been Doing Since 1914?"

According to Mr. Horne, many of the local group have arranged their vacations from secular jobs so they can attend the entire convention.

The convention will be operated by Witnesses who volunteer their time and skills without pay.

Reformed Church Notes

Guest speaker for the 9 a. m. morning worship service at the New Palts Reformed Church will be the Rev. Willett Porter. Care nurseries will be available in the Education Building.

Dress rehearsal for Stone House Day Pageant was held on Friday on the lawn of Harold Wood's home at North Front Street and Huguenot Street.

Saturday 10 to 6 p. m. is Stone House Day. Nine old houses are open to the public, including two outside the village. There will be lectures, luncheon at the church, early crafts, booth selling gifts, souvenir and baked goods as well as refreshments and entertainment. The Burgher Guard is scheduled to appear at 2 p. m. and the pageant, in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Ashton Hart, at 2:30 p. m. Admission will be charged.

Motorist Is Hurt
As Car Hits Wall

William Molloy, 27, Mt. Tremper, was injured at 1:50 a. m. today when his car went out of control on Route 28 about three miles west of Route 212, Town of Woodstock, and crashed head-on into a stone wall.

Trooper Thomas Crowley of the Kingston State Police detail said Molloy was taken to Kingston Hospital suffering a fractured right wrist and multiple lacerations of the legs.

The car was traveling west on the highway at the time of the mishap. Trooper Carl Van Wageningen investigated.

Buffalo Area Faces
No-Bus Weekend

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Passengers in the Buffalo area face a weekend without bus service as negotiations aimed at ending a six-day-old strike were recessed until Monday.

Officials of the Niagara Frontier Transit System (NFTS) and Local 1342, Amalgamated Transit Union (AFL-CIO) agreed to study their respective positions over the weekend. Federal Mediator Thomas R. Colosi said Friday.

Directors of the company and the union will hold separate, regularly scheduled meetings before the talks resume.

The local's 1,100 member drivers, maintenance personnel and clerical workers left their jobs at 12:01 a. m. last Monday after rejecting a union-endorsed contract proposal.

Information Is Available at New Chamber Center

NEW PALTZ—The New Palts Chamber of Commerce has set up an information booth on Route 299, on the Badami property. Because of the influx of visitors for Stone House Day, Visitor's Week Aug. 7 through 14, the Chamber has set up this information center to help visitors and to make it convenient to obtain tickets to the two plays being presented during the week.

The booth, which has its own rustic charm, is being staffed by Mrs. John Dietrich and Miss Jacqueline Stiene. Opening day for the information center was Thursday, Aug. 4. Hours are 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. every day. A telephone has been installed in the booth.

The Chamber of Commerce is compiling a list of people who would be willing to rent a room, single or double, on a temporary basis for visitors. If the usual facilities are full during Visitor's Week, this list will be helpful in providing accommodations. Anyone will be listed may call the Chamber of Commerce Booth.

Receives $1,000
For Recreation

Town of New Palts supervisor, Peter Savago, has received word from Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller that $1,000 in state aid has been allocated by the State Division of Youth to the Town and Village of New Palts for its 12-month recreation program which it conducts through the New Palts Recreation Commission.

Savago had applied for the state aid which will be part of a $2,000 total to be used during the year for recreation in the town and village. Activities will include competitive sports, arts and crafts and various social events such as dances.

Gov. Rockefeller noted that last year the State of New York furnished $4.5 million in state aid for the establishment, operation and maintenance of municipal youth bureaus, recreation projects and youth service projects.

Receives Diploma
From Red Cross

Bonnie Thoben, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thoben of Palms Road, New Palts, was given a diploma recently by the American Red Cross National Aquatic School in Alexandria, Va. Bonnie, who will be a sophomore at Hope College in Michigan in September, satisfactorily completed the course at the First Aid Water and Safety and Small Craft School, Gardner Lake Camp, New London, Conn., in June. The course included standard first aid, water safety instruction, basic rowing, canoeing and camp waterfront leadership.

Bonnie, a 1964 graduate of New Palts High School, is a counselor at Camp Laurel Redfield, Me., this summer. Camp Laurel is owned by Dr. Merrill Leachard of Campus School, New Palts. The camp has been located on Lake Awosting at Lake Minnewaskee for many years but moved to Maine this year.

Methodist Activities

Sunday worship service will be held at 10 a. m. at the New Palts Methodist Church with nursery class for all children ages 1-7.

Monday, Aug. 8, the official board will meet in the social room at 7:45 p. m.

The board of trustees will meet at the church at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

An exhibition of reproductions of famous religious art masterpieces will be displayed in the Fellowship Room from Aug. 10 to 17.

The vacation church school will be held from Aug. 15 to 26 under the chairmanship of Mrs. Alfred Scribner and Mrs. Donald Rober. Registration will be on Monday, Aug. 16 at 9 a. m. at the church.

BRIDGE

Drop or Double Finesse Better?

By OSWALD & JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Sometimes bridge players argue about finesse. South studied dummy for about ten minutes before playing the first card from dummy. Then he won the trick in his own hand and played out dummy's ace and king of clubs.

When both opponents followed to the second club South conceded a club trick and claimed his contract.

North remarked, "Your play worked, but as a matter of strict mathematics you should have won the spade in dummy and taken a double diamond finesse. Unless West held both king and queen of diamonds that play would have worked. There is a 76 per cent chance of finding one of two honors in the East hand. There is only a 68 per cent chance of breaking the clubs 3-2."

South replied, "The actual chance of success with the club play was 71 per cent. I don't play in a vacuum and would have abandoned clubs had they broken 5-0 but you overlook the fact that my club play gave me a considerable extra chance. Suppose East showed out on the second club. I would go after diamonds and have a 24 per cent chance of making my contract. East could hold both diamond honors. Or West might show out on the second club. Then I would still have a 59 per cent chance of success."

Play works out to better than 80 per cent.

Nevertheless we would almost surely have attacked diamonds because we would reason that West would surely have opened a diamond if he held both the king and queen.

Elmira Man Named
New Chairman of Festival at Ithaca

David C. Mandeville, an Elmira lawyer, has been elected chairman of the board of trustees of the Festival at Ithaca, an upstate cultural and educational center.

He succeeds Dr. John Summerskill who was recently appointed president of the San Francisco State College.

Mandeville will chair the governing body of the Festival project, which will open a classic repertory theater under Alan Schneider's direction in 1968.

Doing The Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
PARTY PRIZES CREATE PROBLEM MAY BIRTHDAY
BOY BE WINNER

Dear Mrs. Post: My 7 year-old son will be having a birthday party next week and we plan to have several games with prizes. He is rather stubborn and it occurred to me that if he, as host, wins a prize, we may have quite a scene if he is not allowed to keep it. Should we allow him to keep a prize if he should win one, and if not, how should we handle the situation?

—Mrs. G. S.

Dear Mrs. G. S.: Don't start giving in to your stubborn son on this sort of issue now, or you'll have trouble with him forever. Explain to him, before the party, that hosts and hostesses don't keep prizes in their own hands and in any case, the birthday presents he will receive will more than make up for his loss.

Don't Return Donated Diapers

Dear Mrs. Post: The other night a group of friends gathered at our house and several of the girls contributed a dish for the dinner. One brought a salad and other brought home-baked rolls and a third made pie, while I provided the rest. There were half a dozen rolls left over and one of the pie was almost untouched. I insisted that the girls who had made them take the leftovers home but I have been told that was not the right thing to do. Was I correct?

—Mrs. Laurie Light

Dear Mrs. Light: No, you were not correct. When food is contributed at this sort of party it is given as a gift and the hostess should take the remainder. The only exception would be if you were going away and could not possibly use it.

Write Request for Recipe

Dear Mrs. Post: I enjoy cooking as a hobby and I am always trying to discover new and different dishes, especially desserts. The other day I enjoyed a most unusual dessert in a restaurant. I was tempted to inquire if I could obtain a copy of the recipe, but I did not. Would it have been in bad taste to do so?

—Kathy S.

Dear Kathy: Any chef would be delighted to know how much you appreciated a dish he had prepared and it is never out of place to send him your compliments via your waiter. However, rather than asking for the recipe at the time, it would be in better taste to write the restaurant, describe the dish and request that, if possible, they send you the recipe.

The correct marking of lines and the amount of a bridge-to-be will need in furnishing her future house, are included in the booklet, "The Bride's Treasure."

For a copy, send a dime and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

Troy Firm Gets Pact

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Defense Personnel Support Center has awarded a $669,100 contract to the Marshall Ray Corp. of Troy, N.Y., for the manufacture of 30,000 wool jersey coats for the armed forces.

The award was among 11 announced by the federal agency Friday.

Youth Is Injured
As Car Overtakes

While driving his car north on Old Kings Highway, Town of Saugerties, at 1 a. m. today, Jeffrey Lane, 16, of Bearsville, lost control and overtook on the road.

Trooper Thomas Crowley of the Kingston substation said Lane's car failed to negotiate a right curve, hit an abutment and overturned. Lane was taken to Kingston Hospital by the Saugerties Ambulance Service.

According to a report of Trooper Carl Van Wageningen, Lane suffered lacerations of the face and ears. He was cited by Van Wageningen for failure to keep to the right. The summons is returnable before Justice of the Peace Calvin Cody.

Election Case Dismissed

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The State Supreme Court has dismissed a move to have the election of members of the State Board of Regents declared unconstitutional.

The case was initiated by Albert Shanker of New York City, who argued that the regents' board did not reflect the "one-man, one-vote" principle set forth by a 1964 U. S. Supreme Court decision.

In addition, Shanker contended, the high court's ruling was applicable to "secondary boards" such as the regents, as well as to groups such as the Legislature that are elected directly by the voters.

Justice John P. Penick dismissed the action Friday and noted that, if Shanker's motion were granted, "the whole educational system of the state is subject to attack for inherent in the system are innumerable instances of delegated powers to make rules and regulations."

Juveniles Are Big Business

BY AILEEN SNOODY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The grandmotherly woman housed briefly in the Hilton here spoke gently of her late husband and the special, imaginative world of children.

Meanwhile, people in the book world who know her name spoke aggressively of sales. Her publisher, Farrar, Straus & Giroux, and others were getting their ledgers ready to reap a windfall from the stimulus of her writing accomplishment.

For Elizabeth Borton de Trevino had just received the John Newbery medal, called by an editor of Atheneum whose children's book won the award last year, "more important than the Pulitzer or even the Nobel."

The Newbery, given since 1922 for the most distinguished children's book, and its companion, the Caldecott medal for distinguished illustration, "probably sell more books in the United States than any other book award."

In the $125 million market of "juveniles," as children's books are called in the publishing trade, the book awards this year perhaps are more important than awards of sales. The influence will continue to gain for at least another five years.

The juvenile sales potential has been primed by the Elementary and Secondary Education Act in which $100 million a year was appropriated specifically for school and public library materials. Already, according to one of the giants in publishing, $75 to $80 million has gone for juvenile titles.

Publishers admit to printing backlists of books to meet the demand from libraries now that there is more money to help librarians fill their bookshelves. The added importance to children's book publishers stems from the fact that book stores are a diminishing factor. It's the libraries that count.

The appropriation of federal funds to hypo interest and sales in the juvenile field is only one factor.

"Children are getting away from the all-seeing eye of television," another book editor explained. "They are reading more and the increased demand for books definitely is not due merely to the population explosion."

He cites the greater interest of parents in books as they become more educated as a prime factor. Juvenile books, too, took on a new look in drawings and story material in the last 10 years. "We are creating more readers, better readers as we make better books."

Mrs. Trevino's award-winning story, "Juan de Pareja," reflects the change in content. It is the biography of Pareja, a Negro slave who became the apprentice of the Spanish painter Velasquez, was freed and became a noted artist. She is fond of the story of Juan because of the idealism it engenders. "If youths learn to live together and be affectionate, then this will inspire them to love," she believes.

The story touches her personal life since she went to Mexico on assignment from the Boston Herald 32 years ago, met a Mexican businessman and married.

When first in Mexico she said it was difficult for her to adjust to the different social attitudes and language. Now she counsels others who come to her for advice with, "Nobody can adjust to social patterns intellectually. It is like falling in love. Do it emotionally. Then find out why afterwards."

She relates this to racial problems with "be neighbors first and the rest will come."

The recognition of her topic in view of national and international racial racial upheavals reflects the realistic change in the book world.

"There was too much sweetness and light," an editor explained. "Now the books often deal with formally taboo subjects, some even grim. The stories combine fantasy and imagination which is the precious world of the young and the nonfiction leans heavily to science, math and anthropology."

Mrs. Louise Yeaple returned home last week after a month's vacation in the west. While there she visited relatives in St. Louis and Salt Lake City and took many sight-seeing tours from there.

Several from here attended the open house party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Graham in Stone Ridge on Saturday afternoon. The party was to commemorate their 50th wedding anniversary. Over 175 relatives and friends were present.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise: Most housewives wonder if empty pepper cans completely when transferring pepper to a shaker.

Here is a trick I learned: Use a beverage bottle opener on one corner of the pepper can and the top lifts up like the lids on frozen strawberry packages.

You can look in the can and be sure all of the pepper is out of the can.

After all, pepper is expensive, so why leave some in the bottom of the can to be thrown away?

—Evelyn White

Why indeed? This would also work on many of our spice cans. And there might be just enough left in a can for that one more time before you go to the grocery store.

—Heloise

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise: One of my greatest timesavers is my husband who mops the floors!

—Jessie

Dear Heloise: When sorting through the small jars I usually save for homemade jellies and jams, the thought struck me what an odd and homely assortment I had!

They were of every size and shape — mustard jars, instant coffee jars, baby food, and other types.

Then I thought of my dish cupboard, containing mismatched glasses, the one or two cups left from dish sets, deep saucer dishes, odd mugs and stemmed sherberts... and I had an idea.

Why not use these as my jelly containers?

They would be attractive to use on the table. When tied with a ribbon and cherry tag, plus a sprig of holly or flower, what a pretty and different holiday gift each would make.

I put my idea to work and am pleased with the results.

I used paraffin as usual, and put a cap of aluminum foil, held tightly with a rubber band over each container for storage.

When used for the gift idea, I'll replace the aluminum cap with one made from a lace doily and ribbon.

—Charlotte Gibson

Dear Heloise: For new mothers with loads of baby shower gifts and not enough dresser space to store them.

I found the ideal supplement is an inexpensive plastic shoe bag.

These are equipped with 10 shelves and only take up about eight inches of space when hanging in your closet.

If you buy a clear bag, it's so handy to see right where those extra shirts, receiving blankets, etc., are.

—Brenda Staurowsky

Brenda, you are a doll to pass this space-saver along to other mothers of other little dolls.

Not only is it easy to locate the item you want, but the zippered bag will keep them completely dust-free.

—Heloise

Dear Heloise: A large shag rug on the floor of our tent catches the moisture from the wet bathing suits and gives an additional softness for that rock that always seems to be under a sleeping bag or air mattress.

A Frenchman Brought the Gypsy Moth to the U. S. A.

Another Frenchman is going to destroy them with the unbelievable invention of a combination of 16 tree saps in the form of syrup — absolutely non-poisonous — acts like quicksand, the more they debate the more they get stuck. Will catch any kind of moth in general, gypsy moth in particular, plus flies, mosquitoes, field mice, etc. One trap—$20 (or on consignment)—will cover up to 1000 acres. Act now, as they are laying eggs through October, to prevent destructive caterpillars in the spring. Another formula for roaches, similar principle, 2 traps for $5.00.

Brewer, Goalby Are Tied

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP)—Gay Brewer, who holds a share of the halfway lead, thinks there are 15 or 20 players who still have a good shot at winning the $100,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament.

But Californian Phil Rodgers won't be among the contenders. The rotund, 28-year-old Rodgers, fifth leading money-winner on the pro tour, looked like he would be with Brewer and Bob Goalby Friday after all three finished with 36-hole totals of 135.

But Rodgers was disqualified for failing to sign his scorecard. "That means get out of town, huh?" Rodgers asked after he was told of his ban by a Professional Golfers Association official. Rodgers was near tears as he packed his gear in the locker room.

It marked the second time this season a tournament leader got the bounce for failing to observe the rule. Doug Sanders was disqualified after the second round of the Pensacola Open after he had built a four-stroke lead. Rodgers was in the same threesome with Sanders that day.

Only three strokes separate Brewer and Goalby from the 15 nearest pursuers for the $20,000 first prize. And only five shots back of the front-runners are the ever-dangerous Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper.

"The field is really bunched, and this is the type of course where somebody can get hot quickly," Brewer noted.

Par or better was shot by 66 players Friday over the Lakewood Country Club's par 36-35-71, 6,777-yard layout, with Goalby getting a 67 and Brewer and Rodgers firing 68s. The original field of 144 was cut to 77 for the final 36 holes Saturday and Sunday.

Biggest name among the casualties was Sanders, No. 2 on the money list, who finished with a 72-74-146. A score of 143 was needed to survive the cut-off.

One stroke back of the pace-setters at 126 were Johnny Pott and veteran Julius Boros, who shot a dazzling 64 Friday for a course record.

Packers Demolish College Stars, 38-0

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—"Revenge?" Vince Lombardi mulled the question, then said:

"I don't believe in the word. I can't remember as far back as 1963."

But everyone knows that elephants and Vince Lombardi never forget, and in 1963 the College All-Stars whipped Lombardi's Green Bay Packers 20-17.

So even Lombardi had to admit that "the boys were really up for this one" when they completely crushed the richest assemblage of All-Star talent in history 38-0 Friday before a crowd of 72,000.

The National Football League champions not only matched the biggest previous shutout in the 33-game series while amassing 388 yards on the ground and in the air but also throttled their own million-dollar babies, Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski.

The two Packer rookies, Anderson with a $600,000 price tag and Grabowski with a $300,000 label, handled the ball seven times between them and wound up gaining 24 yards.

Relentless Offense

While Grabowski and Anderson were being embarrassed, the two running backs they hope to replace, Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung, combined with quarterback Bart Starr as the Packers rolled relentlessly through the All-Star defense.

Taylor ripped off 75 yards in 15 carries and scored on runs of one and 13 yards. Hornung carried nine times for 44 yards and set up one touchdown before he had the wind knocked out of him and left. Starr completed 13 of 22 passes for 177 yards, hitting Boyd Dowler with a 10-yard touchdown pass and firing a 13-yard scoring strike to Bill Anderson.

The other Green Bay touchdown was scored by Herb Adderley on a 34-yard run with an interception. Don Chandler kicked a 17-yard field goal.

The All-Stars, unable to penetrate past the Green Bay 45 in the first half while Steve Sloan of Alabama and Billy Anderson of Tulul were handling the quarterbacking chores, had their biggest moment in the third quarter when Missouri quarterback Gary Lane raced 57 yards to the six.

The Packers, however, stiffened and took over with the ball on the 13.

Lane, the property of the NFL's Cleveland Browns; defensive back Nick Rassas of Notre Dame and Atlanta of the NFL; and defensive back Rodger Bird of Kentucky and Oakland of the American League were among the All-Star stand-outs.

Santo Leads Cubs Over Giants

Belts Two Homers In 4-3 Decision; 18th for Koufax

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

They're throwing at Ron Santo's head again, but his bat keeps getting in the way.

The Cub third baseman was out of the lineup for 10 days earlier this season with a fractured cheekbone, courtesy of an errant pitch by Jack Fisher of the Mets. Friday, Bob Bolin of the Giants took a couple of shots at him.

They didn't do any good, though. Santo hit two home runs and a two-run single in the 10th that gave Chicago a 4-3 victory. Santo's first homer came off Bolin in the second inning and when Ron appeared at the plate again in the third he suddenly found himself studying the chalk around the batters' box close. Eventually, Bolin struck him out.

Happy with that result, Bolin tried it again when Santo led off the bottom of the ninth with San Francisco leading 2-1. But he climbed out of the dirt and hit his 25th homer of the season, sending the game into overtime.

In other National League games, Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh, 4-3. St. Louis beat New York 7-1. Atlanta crushed Philadelphia 9-2 and Los Angeles bounced Houston 12-1.

Overcome Lead

By the time Santo came up in the 10th, Bolin had given way to Frank Linzy but the Giants had gone ahead 3-2 on Tito Fuentes' homer in the top of the inning.

The Cubs loaded the bases, though, and with one out Ron cracked the single that won it.

The Giants are now one percentage point behind the league-leading Pirates, who bowed to Gordy Coleman's tie-breaking home run in the sixth inning. The victory was the Reds' sixth in a row, 11th of their last 12 and 16th of their last 19.

The Cards clubbed three homers off the Mets, the most productive being Tim Lincecum's three-run shot in the ninth. Julian Javier had one with a man on, and Tito Francona contributed a solo blast. Rookie southpaw Steve Carlton won his first major-league game, holding the Mets to six hits.

Hurt Philly Streak

The Braves came up with five runs in the ninth inning in snapping the Phillies' winning streak at seven games. Joe Torre and Denis Menke hit homers in the ninth after the Phils had come from two runs back in the sixth. Torre's homer was his 27th of the season.

Sandy Koufax became the major leagues' first 18-game winner as Los Angeles jumped on Houston early and often. Koufax left the game after six innings, though the Dodgers were quick to say that nothing was wrong with him, they just didn't want him to over exert himself. Sandy struck out 10 Astros in those six innings.

Softball, Baseball Soccer Are Scheduled

Local sports buffs are guaranteed a weekend of activity on several fronts, beginning with tonight's annual benefit softball game at Dietz Stadium between the Kingston Patrolmen's Association and the Middletown Patrolmen's Association.

There is also a softball contest in Saugerties between stars of the Saugerties Softball League and the Royal Dukes, co-leaders of the City Softball League. This one begins at 8:30 p. m.

Still another softball game will be held Sunday at Dietz Stadium with the opposition being provided by the New York Astros, a local five-man club, and the City Softball stars.

Those who like soccer might take a ride to Oehler's Mountain Lodge Sunday from 10 in the morning until dusk as eight teams compete in the annual Hudson Valley Soccer tournament.

Baseball will not take a back seat. Satchel Paige and the Indianapolis Clowns will be at Dietz Stadium Monday night for a battle with the unbeaten Kingston Braves. Paige, who is 60 going on 70, is expected to do some pitching for the Clowns.

The New Paltz tennis tournament gets underway Monday night at the State U. courts and Wiltwyck Country Club will stage the finals of its men's division championship Sunday morning.

Relief Ace Baffles Orioles

Humphreys Hurls Nats to 4-2 Win; Yankees Split

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles were wild about Jim Hannan, but they certainly don't want to meet Bob Humphreys again.

The Orioles jumped on Hannan for two runs on three walks, a wild pitch and a grounder in the first inning, then were strangled by Humphreys and his strikeout pitch for the next seven innings as they bowed to the Washington Senators 4-2 Friday night.

Hannan started the first by walking Luis Aparicio. He walked Russ Snyder before getting the first out, then loaded the bases by walking Brooks Robinson. Aparicio raced home on Hannan's wild pitch, and Snyder came across as Boog Powell grounded out.

When Hannan started the second inning with a walk to Dave Johnson, Senators' Manager Gil Hodges brought in Humphreys. The right-hander proceeded to retire 11 Orioles in a row, striking out four of them. Aparicio broke the string with a fifth-inning single but Humphreys merely started over, setting down the next seven batters, three on strikeouts.

In all, Humphreys allowed two single-runners, the second by Vic Ryznsky led off the eighth while striking out eight in seven innings.

The Orioles' hit output gave them five in the past two games, and the defeat gave them a three-game losing streak. That marks only the fourth time this year, and only the second time since late in May, that Baltimore has lost three or more games in a row.

Despite the losing streak, the Orioles still hold an 11-game lead in the American League and it will take a lot more than three straight defeats to whittle that down very far.

In other AL games, Detroit blanked Boston 2-0, Chicago defeated California 3-1, Cleveland edged New York 5-4 before bowing 3-0 and Kansas City trimmed Minnesota 4-2.

By the time Humphreys entered the game, Washington already had taken a 3-2 lead. Ken McMullen hit a two-run homer, and Fred Valentine followed with a bases-empty blast in the bottom of the first.

Detroit's Earl Wilson pitched a five-hitter for his first victory against his former Boston teammates. The Tigers backed him with two runs in the fifth inning, the first scoring on Don Wert's single and the second on Dick Tracewski's sacrifice.

Gary Peters also fired a five-hitter in Chicago's triumph over California.

Hamilton Wins

The third five-hitter of the night went to New York's Steve Hamilton, who blanked Cleveland in the second game. Tom Tresh's three-run homer in the fifth won it for the Yankees.

The Indians took the opener as Leon Wagner drove in three runs with his 17th homer and a single. Clete Boyer homered for New York and knocked in a third run with a single.

Danny Cater paced Kansas City's victory over Minnesota. He singled and scored in the fourth, singled home a run in the fifth and singled across another in the seventh.

Bonner Top Seeded In Valley Tourney

Dave Bonner of Poughkeepsie, one of the top players in the Hudson Valley, has been seeded number one in the men's singles division of the New Paltz Open Tennis tournament, scheduled to begin Monday at the State University courts in New Paltz.

The doubles team Bonner and Burt Gold have been top-seeded in the men's doubles. They captured the championship last year.

Others seeded first are Kitty Fowler of Kingston in the women's singles, Mal Nelson of Newburgh in the men's senior singles and Miss Fowler and Jim Frederick of New Paltz in the mixed doubles.

One change has been made in the tournament format, according to director Doug Sheppard. The men's singles, semi-finals and finals, and the men's doubles final matches will be three out of five sets. All other matches will be best of three.

Action in the event sanctioned by the U.S.L.T.A., will begin at 5 p. m. Monday. Finals are scheduled the following Sunday. All matches will be held at the New Paltz College courts.

Uncertain as to Future Six Months Ago, Mantle Needs Only Six Homers for '500'

For a player who has had almost as many injuries as base hits, Mickey Mantle is doing very well. In fact, the star outfielder at the moment is sixth on the all-time home run list, having added 21 to date for a total of 494, and is the greatest Yankee home run hitter ever with exception of the immortal Babe Ruth.

Only six months ago, Mickey Mantle wasn't at all certain he ever would make a trip to the plate again. He had a bone chip removed from his shoulder at the Mayo clinic, and doctors told him he'd be fortunate if he returned to the Yankee lineup by June.

And who was in centerfield for the Yankee when the season opened April 12th? Mantle of course.

Tremendous Ovation

He couldn't throw and the infielders had to run out to the outfield to take relays then, but there stood Mickey, the superstar, who was accorded one of the greatest ovations ever given anybody in Yankee Stadium on opening day, 1966.

The scar on Mantle's right shoulder was still angry looking in April. But, gradually, the Mick regained his form as the season progressed, and in the month of July the muscular outfielder cracked ten home runs. It's getting so that every time he goes to the plate he seemingly is taking aim on some kind of Yankee (or league) record.

Since 1951, when Mickey came up and collected his first home run off Chicago's Randy Gumpert (May 1), he has relentlessly forged the most unusual home run record of them all. He'll never approach Ruth's 714 home runs, but, then, what switch hitter is ever going to approach the records Mantle has established?

Greatest Switch Hitter

It's likely that Mickey will go down in baseball history as the greatest power hitting switch hitter the game ever had, or will have. Oh, sure, the records substantiate this statement.

Going into the first week of August, Mantle had, as we say, a total of 494 home runs. How many have been hit right handed? One hundred forty nine. Left handed? Three hundred forty five.

All the greatest home run hitters through the years have batted exclusively from one side of the plate. Ruth, Ott, Mays, Gehrig, Williams et al. Few players in the long history of the game have been blessed with as much talent as this 195 pounder from Oklahoma. But few players have suffered so many injuries as Mantle, and the fact that he has been able to establish so many Yankee records is even more remarkable when you consider the circumstances.

Wrapped like an Egyptian mummy from the waste down, Mantle nevertheless has averaged a home run every 14.6 times at bat. He has hit two or more home runs in one game 43 times during his spectacular career. He hit three home runs in one game.

Good Road Hitter

It is interesting indeed to note that Mickey Mantle has hit more home runs on the road than he did at Yankee Stadium. To date his homer output on the road is 250, while at home he has hit 244. These figures merely establish the fact that no ball park is big enough to contain a hitter such as Mantle.

Pitchers who were hurt most frequently by Mantle home runs include Early Wynn, now a Cleveland coach, who has served up 13 to him; Pedro Ramos (who has since joined Mantle on the Yankees), 12; and Camilo Pascual of the Minnesota Twins, 11.

Mantle hit homers fairly regularly in all parks. In Washington and Boston he has hit 38. In Detroit, 37, 30 in Chicago and 24 in Baltimore.

Of all the records that Mantle may establish, it's likely that the most games played as a member of the Yankees that intrigues him most. Lou Gehrig played 2164 as a Yankee and Yogi Berra 2116. Mantle has a chance to pass them both. He had played 2092 as of August 3.

So, for a player held together with bailing wire, adhesive tape and ace bandages, his exploits can be described as nothing less than phenomenal.

NLL Mets Defeat Giant Club, 13-3

Scoring in every inning but the sixth, the Mets overpowered the Giants, 13-3, in a National Little League game.

Garry Faulkner homered and singled for the winners. Jerry Sart, Mark Snyder and Larry Woerner hit doubles.

Line score:

	R	H
Mets	343	210-13
Giants	100	020-3

Garry Faulkner and Gil Williams; Larry Woerner and John Carter.

Anton's Rally Gains 17-16 Win

Anton's Restaurant retained its slim lead in the Saugerties Softball League and did it the hard way. The leaders scored eight runs in the seventh inning to knot their games with Ted's Esso and then pulled out a 17-16 win in 11 frames.

The winners had 18 base hits with Barry Trancante getting a triple and three singles. Art Spert had a double and three singles for Ted's.

Tonight's game will have Saugerties Stars meet the Royal Dukes, co-leaders of the City Softball League. Gordon Norton of the Dukes will start against Bob Wolven of the Stars.

Sire Stakes At Monticello

MONTICELLO — The New York Sire Stakes, worth approximately $2,000,000 during its state-wide series, comes to Monticello Raceway next week. For its eight divisions here, the races will totally carry a $90,000 price tag.

Bringing forth such stalwarts as Danny Row Gil, Shooter, Clever Ward, Santo Tom, Bobby Ed, Cathy Barnin, etc., the sire stakes will commence Monday and end Saturday when the Mighty M stages its third double-header program.

Monday's events are for fresh-man pacing colts and geldings as well as trotting fillies. Each carry purses of approximately $10,000. Identical sums will be the carrot that makes horsegy the next day in the two-year-old colts and gelding trot and filly pace.

Wednesday is reserved for the $23,000 estimated three-year-old trot and the pacing counterpart for a like sum holds sway on Thursday. Friday will be dark as far as the sire stakes are concerned but Saturday will see both four-year-old battles presented; the $15,000 trot in the afternoon and the pace, with the amazing Danny Row Gil, in the evening.

At Major Tracks
The sire stakes are conducted at every major track in the Empire State. Goshen's Historic kicked off the 1966 editions and was followed by the week-long events at Buffalo seven days ago. Following the stay at Monticello, the series moves to Saratoga, followed by the Syracuse Exposition where in two days over a quarter of a million dollars will be dispersed for the most money in a comparative time anywhere in the world. Then, it's on to Batavia, Vernon, Yonkers and Roosevelt.

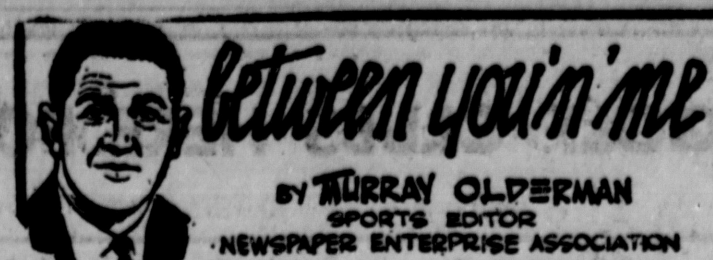

Since the inception of the sire stakes in 1957, the series has grown by leaps and bounds. Next year, after a full decade of existence, there will be some 3,000 mares and 250 studs in New York State. Ten years ago, there were 300 mares and 50 stallions.

Money to State
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Parliament revenues from the 52-day spring meeting at Roosevelt Raceway netted the state $9,810,318, says the state tax commissioner.

Joseph H. Murphy reported Friday that a total of 1,191,978 persons attended the meet, which ran from May 23 to July 23 at Westbury.

The total handle for the session was $94,448,328, an average daily handle of $1,616,314.

There are 20 teeth in a human's first set of teeth; 32 in the permanent set.

You can expect denials, but there was a provision in the merger of the American and National football leagues that the NFL would get first crack at the top college quarterbacks in the first common draft to be conducted next January... which makes you wonder when Commissioner Pete Rozelle professes to be worried about teams like Denver getting an equitable break in the draft.

Brooks Robinson, the Baltimore third baseman driving for most valuable player honors, insists that the only way to be a team leader is to be an outstanding ballplayer... "and I think all the guys on the club look up to Frank, and I hope some of them look up to me."... They do.

The way the Cleveland Browns have figured out, the absence of Jimmy Brown will make them a better team, balance-wise. Last year there was a 60-40 ratio between running and passing (most teams like to keep it 50-50)... We'll have a good season," said veteran tackle Dick Modzelewski, "if Frank Ryan has a good season."

Little Mo looked right at Ryan, too, as he said it. The mathematician blushed but didn't deny it. He only said, "It's still the coach (Blanton Collier) who decides how much I pass."... It was fitting that Al Geiberger, after winning the PGA, should mention his old Southern California schoolmate Mike McKeever. Mike's still comatose after an auto accident several months ago, and the expenses are running up to the point that serious fund-raising will be undertaken to assure him proper care...

The question that bugs Dave Nelson most, now that he has stepped down as an active football coach to become athletic director at Delaware, "How does it feel to be doing nothing?"... "The next guy asks me that," he vows, "I'm going to punch in the nose. That is, I would if I weren't a devout coward." And just what keeps him busy? "We've got two new buildings going, a field house and phys ed headquarters, that cost $5 million."... Dave also reveals that the closest he came to leaving the small school environment was when Illinois offered him the head football job in 1959... "Then I figured a coach is bound to wind up in administration. And I was already there."

Nelson also once had a combination head-coach-athletic-director offer from Baylor. But it involved bonuses on a sliding scale according to where his team finished in the Southwest Conference. "Those Texans," he shudders, "scare me."... Everything's up to date in Anaheim, even the organizer. He's a fellow named Shay Torrent who used to commute to Comiskey Park in Chicago, from Santa Barbara, to rifle the pipes. Got a sense of humor, too. When dead-pan Norm Siebern comes up, he plays, "The Shadow of Your Smile." For third baseman Paul Schaaf, it's "My Shave," and a rumba beat... The manager trots out to the pitcher's mound for a conference, and he breaks in with "Climb Every Mountain."

It's not pure propaganda that has Norb Hecker, the new coach of the Atlanta Falcons, so high on Randy Johnson, who played at obscure Texas A&M but figures as the top passer of the new team once he gets over his cracked ribs. Hecker reveals that when he was on the Green Bay staff, the Packers had Johnson rated the No. 1 quarterback prospect in the country...

Why Frank Robinson is content in Baltimore: he has made more money there in a couple of months, from endorsements, appearances, than he made in 10 years in Cincinnati. Jack Sanford, enjoying a phenomenal comeback with the California Angels at 37, finds his kids rooting for him to keep on pitching, too, but he's suspicious. "I think it's because they want to live out here, close to Disneyland."

Between you'n me, there's still unrest in the structure of professional golf, with the tour regulars wanting to break away from their club teaching brethren...

Red Wings Keep 1st Place Status

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rochester's Red Wings headed south for Jacksonville today with a shaky one-game lead in the tight International League race and a new appreciation of pitcher Tom Phoebus.

Phoebus, 24-year-old right-hander, has a 2-9 record that's far from the best on the Red Wing staff. He's often been an in-and-out and has had to struggle to win as many as he's lost.

But in the current scrap for the flag, in which the Wings and pursuing Columbus lately have seemed to be trying to out-stumble each other, Phoebus has won some vital games. He hasn't been involved in a loss in the last three weeks and has won three straight in that span. Phoebus' latest crucial effort came Friday night when the Red Wings after three consecutive defeats, used his five-hit, 10-strikeout pitching to whip Richmond 3-1 in the second game of a twin bill after the Braves had taken the opener, 5-1.

Columbus lost its third in a row at Buffalo, 4-2, to drop a full game behind the Wings. In other action, Toledo pulled into a third-place tie with Toronto, three games from the top by whipping the Maple Leafs 12-8 in 10 innings, and Syracuse handed Jacksonville its ninth loss in 11 games, 4-1.

Two third-inning runs manufactured on a walk, Mark Belanger's double and Steve Demeter's single gave Phoebus all the lead he needed to subdue Richmond for Rochester. In the opener, Jim Beauchamp hit his 24th and 25th homers and Ade Garrett his 13th for Richmond.

Larry Himes' bases-loaded double in the eighth inning gave the Wings a 4-3 lead over the Braves.

Stokes to Attend Benefit Cage Tilt

MONTICELLO, N. Y.—Maurice Stokes who has been bed-ridden in two Cincinnati hospitals ever since his original confinement on March 4, 1958, with a brain injury, will leave the city for the second time, Aug. 15, for a trip to Monticello. This marks the second time that Stokes has been permitted to leave the city by doctors attending him since he incurred his unfortunate injury.

Jack Twyman, who is making arrangements for the 8th annual Maurice Stokes benefit basketball game at Kutsher's Country Club in Monticello, on Tuesday, Aug. 16, announced that special arrangements have been made to fly Stokes and the Cincinnati Royals players, together with John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics, to Monticello for the exhibition in Stokes honor.

Stokes will be accompanied by his nurse and an attendant, and will be met at Stewart Air Force Base by an ambulance which will drive him to Kutsher's where he will be a guest of owner, Milton Kutsher. Also accompanying Stokes will be Jack Twyman, Jerry Lucas, Adrian Smith, Wayne Embry and Happy Hairston of the Royals and John Havlicek of the Boston Celtics. The parents of the former Royals star will come in from Pittsburgh, Pa., to visit with their son at the Country Club.

Thus far a total of $45,000 has been raised from the seven previous benefit games played in behalf of the Maurice Stokes Fund by stars from the ten NBA teams.

Judo, Karate Classes
Judo and Karate classes, sponsored by the Kingston Judo Club, have begun and will be held until further notice. Those interested are asked to contact Al Girard.

Harry — So, she turned you down, eh?

Larry — Yes. I made the mistake of confessing that my heart was in my mouth when I proposed.

Harry — What had that to do with it?

Larry — Oh, she said she couldn't think of marrying a man whose heart wasn't in the right place.

Nancy — You college men seem to take life pretty easy.

Bob — Yes; even when we graduate we do it by degrees.

The child who hid behind his mother's skirt has to find another refuge today.

Have you ever noticed that a red light is the place you catch up with the nut who passed you at 80 miles an hour one mile back?

When you see a married couple out for a walk, the one who is two steps ahead is the one who's mad.

Ann — Do you have any trouble getting money out of your husband?

Amy — Not at all. I say, I'm going back to mother, and he immediately hands me the fare.

A man with a good vocabulary is one who can describe a stacked girl without using his hands.

Molly — What did you say when Jack threatened to kiss you?

Polly — I told him I'd like to see him.

Molly — And then?

Polly — Well, Jack always tries to do what I like.

Hostess (at evening party) — What, going already, Professor? And must you take your dear wife with you?

Professor — Indeed, I'm sorry to say I must.

Every day the world turns over on someone who has just been sitting on top of it.

Ann — Don't you think I sing with feeling?

Dan — No, if you had any you wouldn't sing.

Johnny started school and within two weeks the teacher sent home a note containing the following: "Young Johnny is more than I can handle. I am forced to ask your help."

The next day the mother sent her answer: "Listen, all those years I had him alone, did I ask you for help?"

Wherever you find equality in marriage you will find compromise after compromise like links in a chain.

WOMEN'S DANCE

The Polka is not solely a women's dance today, but its name simply means "woman" in Polish. Originally a great many more women participated in this form of dancing than men, thereby accounting for the name.

SHOWTIME®

THE COLORFUL WORLD OF ENTERTAINMENT

FULL WEEK'S LISTINGS OF TV PROGRAMS — AUGUST 7th THRU AUGUST 13th

PREVIEW: Meet The Monkees, clockwise from 12 o'clock: Peter Tork, Michael Nesmith, Micky Dolenz, Davy Jones. The zany quartet laugh it up in a half-hour music-and-comedy spoof as part of NBC-TV's Monday evening new-season lineup.

New CBS Series 'It's About Time' Starts This Fall

BY ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD—Gilligan's Island has a new look.

The lush tropical land has been redecorated to represent the stark unreality of the Stone Age.

The wrecked and beached fishing boat is out of sight. It has been replaced by one of today's cone-shaped capsules lettered with the words, "SCORPIO E-X-I."

What the camera sees this day in the filming of a new CBS-TV series, It's About Time, leaves you laughing at first sight. Imogene Coca and Joe E. Ross, long-haired and costumed in furry animal pelts, are playing a Stone Age couple not unlike Mr. and Mrs. Flintstone.

In the scene with them are a pair of astronauts, Frank Aletter and Jack Mullaney, wearing the familiar American flag-decorated NASA space suits.

Astronauts who have landed back in the Stone Age?

Yup, that's the premise of It's About Time, coming to home screens this fall at 7:30 p. m. Sunday nights. Something goes wrong, see, and our not-too-intrepid astronauts break the time barrier and land their capsule in the Stone Age of million years ago.

It's as zany as Gilligan's Island with Mike Mazurki, Mary Grace, Pat Cardi and Cliff Norton in on the fun as fellow cave dwellers with Imogene and Ross.

Sherwood Schwartz, a man with two series for the price of one (he's also the creator-producer of Gilligan's Island) is the first to admit that his new It's About Time show is no P-ehouse 90.

Schwartz, you see, has a different idea about how to come up with a successful TV comedy series.

"My theory about television is love. Audiences have to fall in love with your people. It sounds corny, but it's true. Gilligan's Island became a hit because of the cast, audiences fell in love with them.

"We have the same situation on It's About Time — three sets of comedy teams perfectly integrated."

He is highest, of course, on the new comedy team of Imogene Coca and Ross, whose last TV series outing was in Car 54—Where Are You?

"People just look at Imogene and Ross and laugh," he says. And he's right.

"It's strange, not like any other show," says an enthused Imogene. Says Ross, who refers to his hairy costume as "early Lassie," it's not going to be a hit — it's going to be a smash."

Ballet Ignored

When the Bolshoi Ballet was in Hollywood, they were generally ignored. A couple of parties were given for them, but the rest of the time they spent sitting around their hotel. When Dr. Seuss, the author and illustrator of children's books, heard about this, he invited the dancers to a special showing of How the Grinch Stole Christmas, a CBS-TV special set for the week before Christmas. He also did sketches of the dancers, which he has hanging in his office.

Happy Over Loss

The attack of dengue fever that Jim Drury caught when he was entertaining troops in Viet Nam cost him 16 pounds. And he is not unhappy over the weight loss.

"I have gradually gained 20 pounds over the years that we have been filming The Virginian," he said. "Now I intend to keep this weight off. The producer, when he saw me, said I looked like old stock footage of myself."

Girl for Wards

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The wife of Batman's Robin has given birth to a 7½-pound girl.

The child, the first born to television actor Burt Ward and his wife Bonney, hasn't been named yet. The couple were married in Pocatello, Idaho, July 19, 1965.

Luci Will Wear Sixpence Gift in Shoe at Wedding

PERTH AMBOY, N.J. (AP)

— Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue. . . and then there's the sixpence Luci Baines Johnson will wear in her shoe today.

Miss Adele Roscoe says she mailed the sixpence to Luci because in addition to the other things the old rhyme tells a bride to wear at her wedding, there is a lesser known line that recommends "a sixpence for your shoe."

"I am enclosing a sixpence just in case you may wish to carry out the above tradition in full. Of course, perhaps you are one of the people who already knows all about it! Anyway, here is the coin," she wrote Miss Johnson.

"I read that she is very sentimental," Miss Roscoe explained. "So I sent her the coin to help make her wedding as sentimental as possible."

Miss Roscoe, 50, an assistant treasurer of a Perth Amboy building materials concern, mailed the English coin March 9.

The White House recently announced that Luci would have Miss Roscoe's sixpence in her shoe. The President's daughter received several from well-wishers but Miss Roscoe's was chosen because it arrived first.

The Monkees—Sing-Group Spoof With Built-In Inanity for Fall

By DON ROYAL

New York

They're cute as a button sharp as a tack, hot as a fire-cracker, new, entirely different from any group you've ever seen or heard before—and they're a bit on the kookie side. They're The Monkees, individually and collectively, and if there had been such a thing as television in the Roaring Twenties, and if The Monkees had been around (they weren't even born then) . . . well, they would have been called the cat's whiskers.

Call them the newest "in" group, or call them "camp", and you may call them the most refreshing thing in show business. The Monkees is the new Screen Gems series, co-sponsored by Yardley and Kellogg's, and they'll be seen in vivid color—yeah, man, vivid—Monday nights, early, on NBC-TV. Early, so the teen-agers may see and enjoy. And it's a safe bet parents will join in for the fun and crazy doings, too. It's that kind of show.

IT'S ALSO the kind of show that's almost impossible to describe. Reasons? Several, but two specifically serve to add to its appeal. Every photographic trick in the book is used in the offbeat series. You'll enjoy some of the wildest chase scenes ever filmed—another excuse for mom and dad to watch. Shades of the Keystone Kops!

The Monkees are real, though, all four of them. In the 19-20 age bracket, the fellows are in the same "bag" (English translation: One's likes, talents, attitudes and behavior patterns). More definitively, their "bag" is, in a general sense, life itself. The cameras follow them through their collective lives, accompanied by their own music adventures and misadventures. But, beyond that, the best way to become familiar with The Monkees is to watch the show.

Each member has a name. It's easier to remember them, individually, that way. The names are, in order, Micky Dolenz, David Jones, Mike Nesmith and Peter Tork.

It may be disappointing to learn that they're all conventional, standard American kids, except the one called "Davey". He's standard enough, but he's from overseas someplace. Your researchers were unable to trace the accent. He comes well-recommended, though, and he's compact, alert, and athletic. They're all athletic.

HAVE TO BE, because co-producers Bert Schneider and Robert Rafelson put them through weekly paces which would bring on the horrors to anyone not physically qualified for a life of derring-do.

About the Monkees individually. Pint-sized David Jones, smallest and swiftest of The Monkees as a strapping 5 feet 3, gave up a career as a jockey to become an entertainer. He played the role of The Artful Dodger for two years in Broadway's version of "Oliver" and it was there that Bert Schneider spotted him and signed him posthaste to a Screen Gems contract.

Micky Dolenz is the tall one, a long-legged drummer who is no stranger on television. He was Circus Boy. Recall? That was 10 years ago and Micky starred in the role for three years. High school and the study of architectural drafting at Los Angeles Trade and Technical College has occupied his time since. He sings, plays guitar and has made night club appearances and television guest shots.

Dallas-born, San Antonio-reared Mike Nesmith will be quickly called "Wool Hat" by his fans, because he always wears one. Somebody gave him a guitar once, but he didn't know any songs. That didn't stop "Wool Hat." He made one up, has been working at it ever since, and eventually he piled into his sports car and headed for Hollywood, a five-day road tour as member of a trio and, eventually, to The Monkees.

PETER TORK, Monkee No. 4, is a native of Connecticut, where his father is an associate professor at the University of Connecticut. Peter worked in a thread mill after a brief (and unsuccessful) try for a higher education at Carleton College, Minn., but decided that wasn't for him, either. But he had always been something of an amateur musician-singer so he got a job in Greenwich Village as a folk singer, went on a tour, and he has been a working professional ever since.

All share a deep understanding of creative dogma, whatever that means.

Like most basically nice—and occasionally nutty—youngsters, The Monkees are in the throes of that "we-have-opinions-too" age. What follows is an exclusive interview granted, under rather madcap conditions, on the set.

IF YOU THINK it's confusing, consider this: our reporter dictated the interview from the hospital. It had to be dictated. His arms, locked tightly behind his back by a restrainer, could not manipulate his typewriter.

QUERY: Gentlemen, since this is the first time I have ever interviewed four people at one time, I'd like to suggest we try not to interrupt or talk all at the same time. Agreed?

MONKEES: (Peter): Hey what is this? (Davey): Right-O! (Mike): You gonna teach? (Micky): This is fun!

QUERY: Now, now! Remember the rules! Seriously . . . what's The Monkees all about?

DAVEY: It's a tidied-up version of the Patty Duke Show. Mike thinks a lot of Patty.

MICKY: It's really a down-to-earth Face the Nation. Diplomatic, nonviolent, cautiously frank.

MIKE: Would you believe a Mod Documentary?

PETER: Or the Hit Parade of the soaring '60s?

QUERY: Look here, I suspect you're just doing a spoof on The Beatles. After all, I've seen the pilot film and . . .

DAVEY: By George, he's got it! We're spoofing. It's Spoof City all the way. But we're spoofing the Bronte Sisters.

QUERY: Now we're getting someplace. Another question. Why do you and so many like you wear sloppy clothes and long hair?

PETER: Because we're indifferent to fads.

QUERY: I get the message. I think. Now, about respectability. What do you guys really think of it?

MICKY: Do you mean fiscal integrity—balanced budgets, and all that?

QUERY: I mean respectability and social acceptance as opposed to offbeat behavior.

DAVEY: We think they are groovy and we also think respectability is not always a symptom of sanity.

PETER: You read that on a box of cereal, Davey.

DAVEY: No I saw it on Lawrence Welk's Tee-shirt.

QUERY: I don't know whether you've given me much of an interview. But I must say I have enjoyed your humor—off and on.

MICKY: You're not sore?

QUERY: I guess not.

MIKE: You've been a real sport.

QUERY: It's my job. I know you've been putting me on. Why be sore about it? Besides, I always shake like this at 11 in the morning.

Interviewer Tries to Clear Up Story of Beatles and Christ

LONDON (AP) — Maureen Cleave, whose interview with John Lennon set off a wave of Beatle-banning in the United States, said today that Lennon actually deplores the fact that some people know the Beatles better than they know Christ.

"I do not think for one moment that he intended to be flip-pant or irreverent," said Miss Cleave. "He was certainly not comparing the Beatles with Christ."

"He was simply observing that so weak was the state of Christianity that the Beatles were, to many people, better known. He was deploring rather than approving this."

"Sections of the American public seem to have been given an impression of his views that is totally absurd."

Remarks by Lennon about Christianity, quoted by Miss Cleave in an interview that was reprinted in an American magazine this week, aroused a storm on some U.S. radio stations, particularly in the Southern Bible Belt. A number of stations banned the quartet's records and urged listeners to join the boycott.

Miss Cleave's interview with Lennon was first published in the London Evening Standard on March 4.

In it she wrote: "Experience has sown few seeds of doubt in him: Not that his mind is closed, but it's closed round whatever he believes at the time."

Then she quoted Lennon as saying:

"Christianity will go. It will vanish and shrink. I needn't argue about that; I'm right and I will be proved right."

"We're more popular than Jesus now. I don't know which will go first—rock 'n' roll or Christianity. Jesus was all right, but his disciples were thick and ordinary. It's them twisting it that ruins it for me."

Miss Cleave then wrote: "He is reading extensively about religion."

That was all the 1,600-word article had to say about religion.

In a telephone interview today Miss Cleave commented: "I am astonished that John's quotation should have been taken out of the context of my article and misinterpreted in this way. The interview, which took place and which appeared in British and also in some American newspapers five months ago, dealt briefly with the subject of religion."

"Mr. Lennon is very interested in it and has been reading several books. As I remember the interview, we discussed how the power of Christianity had declined in the modern world and his remarks were intended to illustrate this."

The Beatles are scheduled to open a 14-city American tour in Chicago on Aug. 12.

From personal appearances and record sales the Beatles make a great deal of money in the United States. Their manager, Brian Epstein, left a sickbed Thursday to fly to the United States to assess the situation.

BEAT ON THE BEACH—Micky Dolenz, one time child star is now one of The Monkees, singing group starred in the half-hour comedy spoof to be seen this fall on Monday Evenings, NBC-TV.

Williams Ready

Before he left Hollywood on a concert tour, Andy Williams taped three shows for his new season. One has Ella Fitzgerald, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, the Smothers Brothers and Jonathan Winters as guests. It will be Andy's first for the season.

One number has a country fair setting and includes several animals. During rehearsal of the show, one of the dancers held a goat and it began nibbling at her blouse. The animal's trainers ran out to a nearby supermarket and bought some apples for the goat. But he apparently liked the taste of the blouse better. During taping of the show, the goat still nibbled away at the dancer's dress.

'Keep It Clean,' Sutton's Advice To Stars in Viet

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Frank Sutton's advice to other performers who go to Viet Nam to entertain troops is: Keep it clean.

Legends of barracks ribaldry notwithstanding, Sutton says: "Don't use blue material. They don't like it. It's a form of talking down to them."

Pays Own Way

STATION BREAK

"Stay here, silly! Sitting on TV antennas went out with running boards and nickel beer!"

rases Jim Nabors on television's "Gomer Pyle, USMC," went to Viet Nam during the show's summer recess from filming.

He paid his own way to Saigon by commercial airliner. Traveling in helicopters and Jeeps, he did 56 one-man shows in eight days for Marine Corps audiences ranging from 18 to 1,000 men.

A writer-actor friend, Larry Hovis, who plays a GI prisoner in "Hogan's Heroes," wrote Sutton's 22-minute routine.

"I always opened with the same gag, and they loved it," Sutton reports. "I'd say, 'Fellows, I'm very upset. All I hear about these days is the Green Beret."

"What's so great about the Green Beret? I've known guys in Hollywood who wore green berets (pause) and green purses (pause) and green dresses."

Sutton plays a gunnery sergeant in "Gomer Pyle." He says: "The guys kept asking me when I was going to make E8 — master gunnery sergeant."

Does that Marine Corps really have such inept characters as the fumbling though well-meaning Gomer?

"In every unit someone would say, 'You've got to see our Gomer Pyle,' and then call out:
 'Go get so-and so'."

The title scene of the television show, in which Sutton strides bellowing beside the lumbering Nabors, was filmed at Southern California's Camp Pendleton. Others in the marching platoon are real Marines, and Sutton said he met some of them.

Sands. They are now divorced. Incidentally, Nancy, 26, is five years older than her new step mother, Mia Farrow.

Is there any chance of ever seeing the CBS documentary Stonehenge, on NBC? — A. P. Graws, N. Miami Beach, Fla.

No. CBS has no plans to sell the show to another network. It also has no immediate plans of repeating Stonehenge, which was rerun early this summer.

I have a bet that Howard Morris once played a leprechaun on The Danny Thomas Show. Am I correct? — Walker Moore, Coral Gables, Fla.

You sure are. The episode was first presented March 9, 1964. Morris played a self-proclaimed leprechaun banished from Ireland by the Leprechaun Committee because he was too happy for the job.

Didn't Patrick McGeehan of Secret Agent star in a three-part Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color some years back? — E. M. M., Farmington, Ill.

He was prominent in two three-parters. The first was the "Scarecrow of Romney Marsh," first presented in February 1964. The second was "Three Lives of Thomasina," telecast in November 1965.

Did David Hedison of Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea ever go to college? How old is he and is he married? — Laura Cummings, Esopus, New York.

Hedison, who will return this fall as Commander Crane on the ABC-TV adventure series, is a native of Providence, R. I., and attended Brown University and New York's Neighborhood Playhouse. He is in his mid-30s and served two years in the U. S. Navy. The actor has never married.

May Lose Beat

If you are a fan of Mickie Finn's, the NBC-TV summer series, you may have noticed that Fred Finn keeps time, when he is playing the piano, by thumping a shoeless left foot against the stage. Fred first removed the shoe years ago when it was found his thumping was being picked up by stage mikes. Now he is so used to taking off his shoe, he can't play any other way. And the others in his group insist that without the thud of Fred's foot, they might lose the beat.

EAST-WEST BOND might be a good subtitle for the latest 007 epic, "You Only Live Twice." Japanese pretties diverting Sean Connery, as agent James Bond, in the picture are Mie Hama, left, playing the secretary, Suki, and Akiko Wakabayashi, right, who has the role of pearl-diving Kiki Suzuki.

Lanky Blonde Can't See Red

NEW YORK — Sheila MacRae, an hour late for a lunch appointment, finally arrived pouting about Jackie Gleason.

"He still wants me to dye my hair red," she sobbed, without a tear in her eye. "I can't understand why he won't let me wear a wig. I love being a blonde."

Across the table from her was a red-headed representative of her new employer, CBS, whom she had needled into taking her to one of the most expensive restaurants in Manhattan.

He patiently listened to her complaint.

"Sometimes I don't think I have the skin for show business," she continued. "I'm not a mover. Men always move me."

It was Gleason she said who convinced her on a golf course that she should be his new Alice Kramden in 10-full hour segments of "The Honeymooners" on his show next season.

"I thought it was wonderful until he told me I'd be more colorful if my hair was brighter color."

Before Gleason, it was her husband of 25 years, singer Gordon MacRae who encouraged her to join him in his night club act. Until five years ago, Sheila, mother of four, stayed home and weaned babies.

One of their children is Meredith MacRae, a new regular on Petticoat Junction this season.

When asked what Gordon thought about her joining Gleason, Sheila raised one eyebrow and said, "Well, he thinks I'm old enough to think for myself."

The lanky, blonde entertainer, who recently acquired Sammy Davis Jr. for her manager, added she enjoyed thinking for herself.

"For the first time in my life, I have freedom. The kids are almost grown and I can pretty much do what I please," she said. "I've always wanted to be an actress, but there was always a baby and I didn't think it was fair to leave them alone."

Sheila came to this country

Bright Future

There's a bright future in store for Jim Connell, who is very funny in Run, Buddy, Run. He is managed by Roy Silver, who handles Bill Cosby and Joan Rivers. Connell once worked in a comedy act with Joan and singer Jack Holmes. They billed themselves as Jim, Jake and Joan.

SHEILA MacRAE

from her native London and studied acting in New York. In her class were Angela Lansbury, comedian Jack Carter and Gordon.

"One look at Gordon and my acting days were over," she said.

The entertainer has no idea as to how she will play Alice Kramden.

"All I know, is that I won't be like Audrey Meadows," she said, referring to the actress who was the original Alice.

Miss Meadows has red hair.

James Fox Fans Don't Know Him, Just Producers

By MICHAEL SHORT

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He reminds some observers of Harold Lloyd. He reminds his producer of Buddy Rogers.

Those who see him in the roaring twenties spoof "Thoroughly Modern Millie" (they'll have to look beyond Julie Andrews, Mary Tyler Moore, Carol Channing and Bearice Lillie) may be reminded of almost anyone except the actor himself and the parts he has played.

James Fox probably has been seen by more moviegoers who can't recall his name than any other young leading man in Hollywood.

Versatility may be the reason his professional reputation outstrips his box office appeal. He was named most promising actor of the year by the Variety Club of Great Britain after playing an effete, upper-class Englishman victimized by his butler in Joseph Losey's prestigious "The Servant." From there he went on to play a pilot in "Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines" and a prisoner of war in "King Rat." After another serious role in "The Chase" Fox turned to farce in "Millie," which will be finished next month. As a bespectacled playboy Fox sings, teaches a frenetic dance called the Tapioca, and scales a building in a scene reminiscent of a classic Harold Lloyd comedy from the 1920s.

Fox's name means little to the public, much to producers. Why?

"There's a kind of gap all over the world for my type," Fox said. The type is the young leading man with polish, a type not seen much since Leslie Howard's and Ronald Colman's day. Fox is tall, blond, slender and what a writer might call sensitive-featured. He speaks with the clarity, precision and style of an Englishman brought up conventionally and sent to Harrow, which he is.

Gisele Gets Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Gisele MacKenzie has won a divorce from her husband after testifying he beat her and kept her "emotionally on the rack."

The Canadian-born performer agreed to pay her husband, former bandleader Robert Shuttleworth, $10,000 to end a business contract. Miss MacKenzie will receive the family home in Encino, Calif., plus other property.

Miss MacKenzie, 39, also testified that Shuttleworth, 52, had shouted obscenities at her in the presence of their two children.

The couple were married in Las Vegas, Nev., in 1958 and separated last Oct. 18.

ROUGH-AND-TUMBLE fight scenes in the movies are staged affairs but a slip-up does happen occasionally and an actor can be injured. In "Hombre," a new western, Paul Newman, wearing Indian clothes, is baited into violence by a white man (David Canary) shown back to the bar. Newman smashes his rifle butt into his tormentor's face and, in this one, fortunately, no one was hurt. Three takes were necessary, however, consuming an entire day of shooting for about one minute of film on the screen.

Carol Burnett: Home Owner

HOLLYWOOD — The private patrolman turned his flashlight on the two people standing in the darkness beside the swimming pool in the back yard of the vacant Beverly Hills mansion.

"What's going on here?" he demanded. Carol Burnett isn't sure now whether she screamed. "But I do remember shaking all over and spitting out, 'W-w-w-we j-j-just b-b-b-bought this h-h-house.'"

Confirmation of the sale had Joe Hamilton late one evening and, in their excitement over acquiring the mansion once owned by Betty Grable and Harry James, they rushed over for another tour of the grounds.

"That's all we could do," she laughed, "because we didn't even have a key to the house. Happily, the patrolman recognized me and said he had heard rumors about the home's sale."

Still excited about the first home she's ever owned and about returning to Hollywood after 14 years of New York apartment living, Carol reached into her purse to display a packet of color photographs of the place. On the packet's cover she had written in bold letters, "OUR HOME."

This winter Carol and Joe will welcome another addition to their family; daughter Carrie is now 2½. Now Carol is busy laughing it up with Lucille Ball in a two-part Lucy special slated for CBS-TV in October.

"I like the way Lucy works," she reported, "easy and relaxed and with an audience. I can't work without an audience. I've done only one show on film, a comedy for Twilight Zone. They dubbed in the laughs and I hated it."

"But working with Lucy, I'm getting the feel of it, I'm going to see if I'd like to do a weekly situation comedy series. When you settle down in Hollywood, have a home, you feel different about things."

"I also keep thinking about what Lucy told me about doing just one special a year. She said she would be chicken to do only one show a year. 'You put your head on a block because people think maybe you've been rehearsing for 51 weeks.'"

Since meeting Jim Nabors, who plays Gomer Pyle, Carol is determined to do a TV special with him. "My husband tells people he's lucky," she laughed. "He tells people his wife isn't in love with Richard Burton or Cary Grant. He tells people his wife is in love with Gomer Pyle and I am. He's a living doll."

Tell me about Pierre Jalbert, Caje of Combat! Does he really speak French?—J.G., Miami, Fla.

Parisians would probably say, "non," but French Canadians would say "oui." A native of Quebec City, Pierre is a graduate of Ouellet College and attended Laval University. At 18, he was the Junior National Ski Champion of Canada. He later became National Champion and was named captain of the 1948 Olympic team. But five days before the start of the Winter Olympics in Switzerland he broke a leg. He remained in Europe to study at the Sorbonne in Paris. After he married dancer Joy Lee in 1960 he settled in Hollywood. Combat is his first TV assignment.

You told Mrs. Burke of St. Paul that Ann Williams who used to play Maggie on The Doctors, had retired to raise a family. The other day I found her on Search for Tomorrow—Edith B. Coventry, West Palm Beach, Fla.

Thanks. Ann recently joined the CBS-TV soap opera and has a featured role as Eunice Webster Twining, Joanne Tate's sister.

Will To Tell the Truth be back on the air next fall? It's one of the best and we think Bud Collyer is tops!—Mrs. T. W. Woodwin, Portsmouth, Va.

The Monday evening quiz show will return with new programs on a new day and at a new time. With Bud again as host it'll be on at 5 p. m. Sundays over CBS-TV.

Just in case, during the excitement of the reception and honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Nugent didn't have time to watch television, ABC arranged a special screening of a filmed interview with Pat's brother, Jerry, that rar. during the wedding night special on the network.

That's just in case you were wondering.

There was a very prophetic line spoken by Donald Harron in the pilot of ABC-TV's The Man Who Never Was. "For some reason, I have become expendable," he said. And he had. He was replaced as the star by Robert Lansing.

Billy Mumy, who plays Will on Lost in Space, likes to ask sports questions to see if he can stump the cast. He did recently with this one: "In what three sports does the winner capture the event by crossing the finishing line going backwards?"

(Give up? In rowing, backstroke swimming and a tug of war).

Fess Parker is still delighted that he was named Father of the Year. "It's better than an Emmy or even an Oscar," he said.

Adams Sends Gifts

Would you believe that Don Adams sent gifts to celebrate the start of film production for the second season of his series, Get Smart? Would you believe the gifts were bottles of scotch? Would you believe that the bottles did not contain scotch, but radios?

Looking for Stars on Studio Tour

By JOAN CROSBY

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — The theory was that tourists taking the Universal Studios tour which has earned the film factory the title Disneyland of the Movie Studios would be looking so hard to find actors wandering around the lot that they wouldn't notice one in their midst.

They were and they didn't. William Smith, who plays Texas Ranger Joe Riley in NBC-TV's Laredo (returning for its second season in a new time slot, Friday's at 10, EDT), agreed to test the tourists' powers of observation.

He might have been recognized as we were standing in line with a gaggle of tourists waiting to board one of the trams which are bringing smiles to the faces of Universal's treasures and frowns to several actors who feel the tours interfere with the main order of business.

A small boy, about 10, standing in front of Bill kept staring at the tall, handsome actor. He seemed to recognize him, but apparently the whole studio was unreal to the youngster, something he was seeing on a very large television screen, and so was Bill. Even when, an hour later, a teen-aged girl finally spotted Bill and got his autograph, the boy just stared.

The tour begins high on a hill overlooking the studios and leads past the make-up department which the tour guide says is a "beehive of activity at 5 a. m." "Would you believe 6?" Bill asks.

Later in the tour, the guide remarks that actors have to learn a lot of lines so must be "rather intelligent."

"I'm not sure I like that 'rather,' said Bill, whose intelligence needs no qualification. He translates Russian historical novels into English for relaxation.

After walking through Lana Turner's dressing room, a cottage so luxurious it makes the average Beverly Hills home look like a slum, Bill asked, "Do you believe this dressing room? I would never leave the studio if I had one like this."

The train drove past areas where old props are stored. "We never throw anything away," the guide said. "And they can never find any of it again," Bill said.

Midway in the tour, the tram stops at "Prop Plaza," where tourists can take photographs of relatives hoisting gigantic rocks over their heads — the rocks are made of a nearly weightless material—or scampering around the old PT 73 of McHale's Navy (Perhaps that's the first sign a show is going off, when a prop becomes a tourists' plaything.)

They can also buy souvenirs and snacks, and it was while waiting to buy a cup of coffee that a young girl came to Bill and said, "Aren't you on Laredo?"

The tour costs $3 a person and is certainly a comprehensive look behind the scenes of a studio which turns out movies and television series like Laredo, The Virginia, Bob Hope Presents The Chrysler Theater, Run For Your Life as well as new series like The Road West, Pistols and Petticoats and The Jean Arthur Show.

With between 25,000 and 35,000 visitors a week, the studio is more than meeting expenses just from the admission charge. But the average tourist spends $10. Bob Hope once said, "They don't care what we're doing at the studio, just as long as we're busy when the tour tram comes by."

James Drury of The Virginian is outspoken in his dislike of the tours. "I have written a strong letter to the studio telling them not to have the tours come by the set when I am working." So has Ben Gazzara.

Charles Bickford, who will be a regular in The Virginian next season, is one of the actors who has a dressing room in the area where the tourists leave the tram to walk through Lana Turner's dressing room and a sound stage with five representative sets.

"If I leave my dressing room door partly open, or come out as the tour goes by, they all think I'm one of the props," Bickford said.

Starting at the beginning in studying the impact of man on natural water resources, the Interior Department's Geological Survey is establishing research stations on 36 "undisturbed" stream sites. Purpose is to determine how streams behave in their natural state in order to evaluate the ultimate effect of such human-originated influences as stream diversions, storage dams, pollution, dredging and industrial use on the nation's water resources. Sites selected as still relatively free of man's influence are:

- 1) North Fork Quinalt River, Wash.
- 2) Swiftcurrent Creek, Mont.
- 3) Hayden Creek, Idaho
- 4) Minam River, Ore.
- 5) Crater Lake, Ore.

"Talk about TV repeats!"

CHANNEL CHATTER

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There is a widely held belief among actors, undoubtedly fostered by budget-minded producers, that any regular employment in television, no matter how dismal the series, helps a fledgling career.

"Forget it," commanded Judy Carne, who encountered her leanest days after her two frail comedy barks foundered in network channels with all hands aboard.

Judy, who had replaced Julie Andrews in the London production of "The Boy Friend," was imported five years ago to play the young English girl in the ill-fated "Fair Exchange."

Then, a couple of seasons back, she had a part in "Baileys Of Balboa," another disappointment. Now she is a co-star in ABC's upcoming young-marrieds comedy, "Love On A Rooftop."

Nancy Sinatra Included

But it was not previous experience that won her a third chance. It was an elimination contest that started with 20 girls, among them Nancy Sinatra. And Judy worked hard, with a coach and a recorder, to eliminate her native British accents.

The elimination process for "Love On A Rooftop" was a real ordeal. After the 20 girls had been arbitrarily reduced to four, each girl was subjected to a "personality test." This involved sitting down in front of a camera to be interviewed by a director who had a bit of free time.

Ultimately she was told she would probably be the choice — but only for the pilot episode of an unsold program, maybe a week's work. Then came two months while they were testing for the boy who would play her husband — a difficult time when she could not take any acting jobs that would tie her up for more than a few days at a time.

This went on from September until they finally shot the pilot one week in December.

Aim at Kooky Quality

The series is built around the adventures of a young $85-a-week apprentice architect and his bride (Judy), an uninhibited art student. The aim of the show is to capture some of the kooky quality of, say, "You can't take it with you," which would be nice.

Judy, separated from husband Burt Reynolds (who is starring in New York in his own new ABC series, "Hawk") rides to work on her motorcycle and spends nonworking hours taking

Stain Soothes Eye

Impatient homeowners who can't wait through the ugly duckling stage of weathering a cedar fence or deck can give nature a hand by applying a single coat of exterior quality driftwood stain to the structure. Weathering will continue and eventually bestow the prized silver patina.
